COURSE Modern Languages (Access 3)

In common with all Courses, this programme of study includes 40 hours over and above the 120 hours for the component units. This is used for induction, extending the range of learning and teaching approaches, support, consolidation and integration of learning. This time is an important element of the programme of study and advice on its use is included in the Course details.

RECOMMENDED ENTRY

Entry is at the discretion of the centre, but candidates may benefit from having completed one or more of the corresponding units at Access 2.

CORE SKILLS

There is no automatic certification of core skills or core skills components in this Course.

Additional information about core skills is published in the Catalogue of Core Skills in National Qualifications (SQA, 2001).

National Course: details

COURSE Modern Languages (Access 3)

RATIONALE

This Course offers a set of experiences in the target language which should be accessible to candidates operating at a very basic level. They involve the candidate working in a variety of defined, real or realistic contexts and using target language skills meaningfully for a range of purposes. Candidates should be able, with appropriate support and prompting, to communicate, and be communicated with, in simple ways. Each of the three units is separate, but there are strong links among them, as it is desirable that much language work at this level should entail the candidate reusing the same or very similar language in different situations. Indeed, the nature of progression at this level is for candidates to become more adept at transferring known language from one context to another with less and less prompting.

The key aim of the units is to promote the acquisition and development of basic communicative skills in the target language through understanding and conveying simple information of a factual nature. Other important aims are to provide a worthwhile and enjoyable educational experience for the candidates, and to broaden horizons by encouraging them to learn something, in the by-going, about the foreign country (or countries) and its customs and ways of life.

Candidates will learn to communicate and be communicated with through the skills of reading, listening and speaking. Alternative forms of communication (for example, writing/typing rather than speaking) may be appropriate and able to be arranged for candidates with special educational needs. Although the skill of writing is not assessed, it is expected that writing will form an integral part of work as a support for learning, for those candidates for whom that is suitable. All candidates should also be encouraged to acquire some knowledge about language, or grammar, to underpin their skills development. This knowledge may be modest, but the opportunity to develop it should not be denied candidates working at this level.

The Course will contribute to the general education of the candidates by widening their horizons to encompass awareness of basic aspects of the culture and language of the country or countries where the language is spoken. It will also contribute to a wider understanding of how their own language works. Vocational education will be fostered by the inclusion of basic language in the context of the world of work, as introduced in the Language in Work unit. It should be remembered, however, that some candidates operating at this level may have difficulties in imagining themselves in different situations and account should be taken of that in teaching. The teaching approaches adopted will contribute to the development of the wider curriculum by encouraging the inter-personal skills required in group and paired activities, thus helping candidates develop confidence in talk and in interacting with others.

COURSE Modern Languages (Access 3)

CONTENT

The Course consists of three component units. Learning across the three units can be integrated by the nature of the language content. Alternatively, each unit can be studied on a stand-alone basis. The units are described briefly below. The unit specifications contain detailed information about standards and assessment. The Appendices are also an important part of the guidance on this Course.

Appendices

For this level:

Appendix 1: Language content (1.1, 1.2, 1.3.)

It should be noted that the content for each unit appears wide, given the learners for whom these units are intended. In order to maintain motivation and to give a feeling of progress, it is intended that all themes and/or topics should be dealt with, albeit at a very basic level. Topic development is at the discretion of the centre, but some examples are given. The language taught at this level will be sufficient to enable the candidate to convey short items of simple, factual information in rehearsed and practised situations. By revisiting the topics in new contexts candidates should gain some confidence in using the target language.

Appendix 2: Summary of assessment procedures

For all levels:

Appendix A: Grammar content

Appendix B: Explanation of terms

Cantonese/French/German/Italian/Mandarin/Russian/Spanish: Personal Language (Acc 3)

Four topics relating to two themes will be covered in the unit. (See Appendix 1.1.)

Cantonese/French/German/Italian/Mandarin/Russian/Spanish: Transactional Language (Acc 3)

Four topics relating to one theme will be covered in the unit. (See Appendix 1.2.)

Cantonese/French/German/Italian/Mandarin/Russian/Spanish: Language in Work (Acc 3)

Four topics relating to one theme will be covered in the unit. (See Appendix 1.3.)

Undertaking the units as a coherent Course offers a number of benefits:

- together, the component units offer opportunities for delivery as a coherent, integrated, holistic experience
- balance and breadth of candidates' experiences and learning will be promoted
- both specific and core skills may be explored and developed
- practical/applied activity may be integrated
- skills and abilities developed through holistic/integrated/practical activity support learning as a whole
- candidates' abilities to sustain effort and concentration, come to conclusions, make decisions, complete a process and evaluate their work are developed

COURSE Modern Languages (Access 3)

ASSESSMENT

The units which make up the Course will be assessed internally only. Details of this internal assessment are provided in the unit specifications and summarised in Appendix 2.

Assessment of communication will be ongoing and candidates will prepare for this naturally in the course of study. Assessment will focus only on language which is familiar and rehearsed.

APPROACHES TO LEARNING AND TEACHING

The purpose of each of the component units is to offer candidates the opportunity to communicate in the target language by understanding and conveying simple factual information. At this level, language will be practised and rehearsed in a limited number of defined situations. By repeating familiar language in a variety of situations, candidates should gain some confidence in using the target language and should be able to achieve some degree of basic communication.

A candidate may not always be able to transfer previously-encountered language across situations and the pattern of assessment will take this into account.

SPECIAL NEEDS

This specification is intended to ensure that there are no artificial barriers to learning or assessment. Special needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments or considering alternative outcomes for units. For information on these, please refer to the SQA document Guidance on Special Assessment Arrangements (SQA, 2001).

COURSE Modern Languages (Access 3)

This is a component unit of Access 3 Modern Languages.

SUMMARY

This unit aims to develop the basic language skills used in exchanging simple personal information.

OUTCOMES

- 1 Convey information in the target language.
- 2 Demonstrate understanding of information presented in oral and written form in the target language.

RECOMMENDED ENTRY

Entry is at the discretion of the centre, but candidates may benefit from having completed the corresponding unit at Access 2.

CORE SKILLS

There is no automatic certification of core skills or core skills components in this unit.

Additional information about core skills is published in the Catalogue of Core Skills in National Qualifications (SQA, 2001).

National Unit Specification: statement of standards

UNIT Personal Language (Access 3)

Acceptable performance in this unit will be the satisfactory achievement of the standards set out in this part of the unit specification. All sections of the statement of standards are mandatory and cannot be altered without reference to the Scottish Qualifications Authority.

NOTE ON RANGE FOR THE UNIT

- a. Content relates to the prescribed themes and topics. To achieve the unit, candidates will be required to cover all of the topics prescribed in Appendix 1.1.
- b. Reference to a word list is permitted for both outcomes.
- c. All contexts will relate to the themes and to the candidates' experience.

OUTCOME 1

Convey information in the target language.

Performance criteria

- (a) Makes at least six contributions to a dialogue in the target language in such a way as to be understood by a sympathetic speaker of the target language.
- (b) Uses language sufficiently clearly to convey the required information, despite inaccuracies in language use.

Evidence requirements*

Oral work in the target language, or other appropriate means which demonstrate that the candidate can fulfil the performance criteria.

OUTCOME 2

Demonstrate understanding of information presented in oral and written form in the target language.

Performance criteria

- (a) Identifies correctly items of information drawn from the themes and presented orally.
- (b) Identifies correctly items of written information drawn from the themes.

Evidence requirements*

Oral and/or written work in English and/or the target language, or other appropriate means which demonstrate that the candidate can:

- identify in one or more listening assessments at least 6 items of information on each occasion
- identify some of the detail in one or more reading assessments

* Across the two Outcomes, evidence of achievement in five assessments is required – two in Speaking, one in Listening, one in Reading and one further assessment in any of the three.

National Unit Specification: support notes

UNIT Personal Language (Access 3)

This part of the unit specification is offered as guidance. The support notes are not mandatory.

While the time allocated to this unit is at the discretion of the centre, the notional design length is 40 hours.

GUIDANCE ON CONTENT AND CONTEXT FOR THIS UNIT

The personal language developed will cover a range of topics and topic development areas drawn from the following two themes: Lifestyles and Education. An outline grid is attached as Appendix 1.1.

All four topics should be dealt with, albeit at a very basic level. Topic development is at the discretion of the centre and should take account of the age, interests and prior learning of the candidates. The language taught at this level will be sufficient to enable the candidate to convey short items of simple, factual information in rehearsed and practised situations.

GUIDANCE ON LEARNING AND TEACHING APPROACHES FOR THIS UNIT

This unit is aimed at a wide population of learners, some of whom may have learning difficulties. For this reason, the emphasis on the language skills will depend upon the needs of the learner. For many candidates, speaking and listening to the spoken word will form the basis of the learning and teaching. For some others, the skills of reading and writing, or a combination of any of the skills, will be more suitable, or indeed necessary, to achieve success.

Textual material may be presented in whatever format is appropriate, and candidates may provide written text by whatever means are appropriate, eg Braille.

The approach adopted should reflect the principles of the communicative approach to language learning and teaching. Teaching will focus on a variety of communicative activities relating to the topics, such as:

- classroom interaction
- meeting people
- question and answer
- games
- making things
- songs
- role-plays
- simulations

National Unit Specification: support notes (cont)

UNIT Personal Language (Access 3)

GUIDANCE ON APPROACHES TO ASSESSMENT FOR THIS UNIT

The key principle in the assessment of this unit is that information is conveyed and is understood. Assessment should be flexible enough to allow any performance which complies with the evidence requirements. The use of pre-prepared visual aids may be helpful. In the assessment of Speaking, prompt cards may be used to guide the activity. These prompt cards may be pictorial or provide single word clues in English or the target language.

Assessment procedures should not be overly formal. Continuous assessment, with short-term targets appropriate to the learner group to satisfy the outcomes and performance criteria, will be the norm.

In preparation for assessment, a milestone approach could be adopted. Candidates could have a checklist of short, simple objectives, to be assessed and noted on an ongoing basis. Rehearsal, repetition and the opportunity for multiple attempts to achieve these objectives will underpin teaching and preparation for assessment. Centres may wish to draw up their own lists of objectives based on the list of topics given in Appendix 1.1.

SPECIAL NEEDS

This unit specification is intended to ensure that there are no artificial barriers to learning or assessment. Special needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments or considering alternative outcomes for units. For information on these, please refer to the SQA document Guidance on Special Assessment Arrangements (SQA, 2001).

Appendix B

Explanation of terms

Within the arrangements for assessment at different levels, reference is made to a number of different conditions for the production of evidence of candidates' performances. This Appendix defines the key categories. It should be regarded as a further point of reference to supplement the information provided within course and unit specifications.

1. Supported Writing

The concept of supported writing is that candidates are able to access a number of types of support while undertaking a writing task, whether or not that task is then subject to assessment. By this means, candidates are encouraged to redraft work and therefore both to produce a final product which is likely to be polished and to acquire the habit of reflection and critical awareness which is a feature of effective development of this skill.

The teacher/lecturer will discuss the task in general terms with all candidates as part of the learning/teaching process. The candidates will do the writing task under controlled conditions. At an appropriate point thereafter, the teacher/lecturer will discuss with the candidate what s/he has written, focusing on general comments such as presentation of content, points of grammar and range of vocabulary and structure (if such is necessary to improve the quality of the writing). The comments should not be 'corrections' of the candidate's work, in that no correct forms should be indicated orally or in writing. However, the general comments may be indicated in writing in the margins. Samples of annotated candidate draft will form part of the National Assessment Bank support materials.

Candidates will then be given an opportunity to redraft on one occasion. The final version should also be produced in controlled conditions, but with reference to a dictionary only, not to the original draft. Normally, the redrafting should occur within a maximum of one week of the candidate producing the original draft, in order for the candidate to gain maximum benefit from the learning/teaching process. If the final version still does not meet the performance criteria for a pass, the process of teacher/lecturer comment and candidate redraft may be repeated. All versions must be kept.

For evidence, the centre should normally retain the original drafts, with teacher/lecturer comments and the final version. Note that redrafting is not obligatory if the initial piece of work is deemed an immediate pass.

2. Directed Writing

Directed writing is the name which has been given to some writing tasks. It should be understood as meaning simply that the content of the candidate's writing is to be directed towards specified headings or to the inclusion of certain points of information. Thus, while the task may allow the candidate to introduce content of her/his choosing, some elements will be predetermined by the nature of the task. This does not necessarily mean a close prescription of what is to be written.

3. Template

The most directed type of writing is that which is to be written to a template. Often, the template (eg in the form of a letter) will require short phrases to be inserted by the candidate, though at other times the inserts may be of a longer and/or more complex nature. This type of directed writing is mostly, though not exclusively, to be found in the Language in Work units.

4. Controlled conditions

By this is meant the completion of tasks or assessments within the presenting centre and under the supervision of the teacher/lecturer, without examination conditions having to be imposed. It is expected, however, that the candidates will complete the work on their own without reference to fellow candidates or the teacher/lecturer, unless the nature of the task (eg interactional) makes that necessary.

5. Reference material

At Advanced Higher, the use of relevant reference material is permitted in the production of the internally assessed piece of writing in the target language. By this is meant text(s) and/or other primary sources studied (eg newspaper articles, business reports, promotional materials). The use of secondary sources related to them (eg critical commentaries, teaching notes, previous drafts) is not permitted.

6. Teaching block/period

This refers to the block of time available for work at any one time. The length may range from 30 minutes in some schools to 2 hours 30 minutes in some colleges of further education. The length of time provided for candidates to undertake an assessment task should be neither artificially shortened nor prolonged. For example, if it is estimated that a task would take 50 minutes when the school's timetable is organised in 30-minute blocks, it would be necessary for the task to be completed within a double rather than a single period. At the other extreme, the availability of an extended period of time should not lead to the task being unnecessarily prolonged.
