

Higher National Unit specification

General information for centres

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Unit code: F3S4 34

Unit purpose: This Unit is designed to enable candidates to understand relevant legislation designed to ensure children and young people's rights in Scotland. It will provide candidates with an understanding of how legislation influences practice in an early years and childcare setting and encourage them to reflect on their role in ensuring the promotion of children and young people's rights.

Candidates will examine the term participation in relation to children and young people's rights and consider specifically their role in responding to child protection concerns.

On completion of the Unit the candidate should be able to:

- 1 Analyse the values and principles that inform the promotion of children and young people's rights.
- 2 Define the term participation in relation to children and young people's rights, and examine the adult's role in supporting and facilitating children's participation.
- 3 Examine the role of the early years practitioner in supporting and protecting children and young people.

Credit points and level: 1 HN credit at SCQF level 7: (8 SCQF credit points at SCQF level 7*)

SCQF credit points are used to allocate credit to qualifications in the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework (SCQF). Each qualification in the Framework is allocated a number of SCQF credit points at an SCQF level. There are 12 SCQF levels, ranging from Access 1 to Doctorates.*

Recommended prior knowledge and skills: It is recommended that candidates should be able to demonstrate a sound knowledge of child development and an awareness of the issues surrounding child protection and the promotion of children's rights. This may be evidenced by significant experience of working with children in the age range birth to 12 years. Evidence could also be through achievement of current NQ Units or equivalent alternative training programmes, or SVQs level 2 in Early Years Care and Education, Playwork or Children's Care Learning and Development.

Core Skills: There are opportunities to develop the Core Skills of Communication and Information Technology to SCQF level 6 in this Unit, although there is no automatic certification of Core Skills or Core Skills components.

General information for centres (cont)

Context for delivery: If this Unit is delivered as part of a Group Award, it is recommended that it should be taught and assessed within the subject area of the Group Award to which it contributes.

Assessment: Outcome 1 could be assessed by an oral presentation or report/essay outlining the candidate's understanding of current legislation, various policies and charters. Candidates should be encouraged to explore their own attitudes and values towards the promotion of children and young people's rights.

Outcome 2 could be assessed by a report/essay of 750–1,000 words and should be referenced, looking at children's participation in the childcare setting. If an oral presentation is given this should be 15 minutes maximum and have a minimum of 10 slides.

In Outcome 3 candidates could be assessed by restricted response questions. The questions could be a combination of multiple choice and/or short answers re a case study which presents a scenario where a child or young person discloses abuse. Alternatively, they could submit a report of approximately 500 words covering the Evidence Requirements.

Higher National Unit specification: statement of standards

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Unit code: F3S4 34

The sections of the Unit stating the Outcomes, Knowledge and/or Skills, and Evidence Requirements are mandatory.

Where evidence for Outcomes is assessed on a sample basis, the whole of the content listed in the Knowledge and/or Skills section must be taught and available for assessment. Candidates should not know in advance the items on which they will be assessed and different items should be sampled on each assessment occasion.

Outcome 1

Analyse the values and principles that inform the promotion of children and young people's rights

Knowledge and/or Skills

- ◆ The rights of children and young people
- ◆ Relevant current legislation
- ◆ Charters, national and local policies
- ◆ Values and principles that underpin a child's rights approach

Evidence Requirements

Candidates will need to provide evidence to demonstrate their Knowledge and/or Skills by showing that they can:

- ◆ identify a variety of significant rights for children and young people
- ◆ use research skills to explore at least three pieces of relevant legislation and charters
- ◆ review how these three pieces of legislation or charters influence perceptions of the rights and responsibilities of children and young people
- ◆ explore own attitudes towards children and young people's rights and responsibilities

Assessment Guidelines

This Outcome could be assessed by an oral presentation or report/essay outlining the candidate's understanding of current legislation and various policies and charters. Candidates should be encouraged to explore their own attitudes and values towards the promotion of children and young people's rights within the assessment of this Outcome.

Higher National Unit specification: statement of standards (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Outcome 2

Define the term participation in relation to children and young people's rights, and examine the adult's role in supporting and facilitating children's participation

Knowledge and/or Skills

- ◆ Theories and policies of participation in relation to children and young people's rights
- ◆ Issues of power relationships between adults and children
- ◆ The importance of listening to children
- ◆ A variety of methods to encourage participation in children
- ◆ The need to support and facilitate participation for all children
- ◆ The role of the adult in facilitating and supporting participation

Evidence Requirements

Candidates will need to provide evidence to demonstrate their Knowledge and/or Skills by showing that they can:

- ◆ present their findings and informed views on two pieces of theory or policy, which supports participation with children, by describing methods to support and facilitate participation
- ◆ discuss the adult's role with regards to power, supporting and facilitating, environment and listening, adults as gatekeepers to information

Assessment Guidelines

This Outcome could be assessed by a report/essay looking at children's participation in the childcare setting, the importance of this, how it relates to child development and learning, the adult's role in facilitating it, and current policy and/or theory that supports participation.

This report/essay could be within the range of 750 – 1,000 words and should be referenced. Alternatively, candidates could do an oral presentation of 15 minutes maximum and have a minimum of 10 slides.

Higher National Unit specification: statement of standards (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Outcome 3

Examine the role of the early years practitioner in supporting and protecting children and young people

Knowledge and/or Skills

- ◆ Potential impact of abuse on children and young people
- ◆ Disclosure of abuse
- ◆ Child protection legislation
- ◆ Child protection policies and workplace guidelines

Evidence Requirements

Candidates will need to provide evidence to demonstrate their Knowledge and/or Skills by showing that they can:

- ◆ demonstrate an understanding of the impact of abuse on the individual in the long and short term
- ◆ describe the processes following disclosure and discuss the role of the adult
- ◆ apply knowledge of child protection legislation, policies and workplace guidelines

Assessment Guidelines

This Outcome may be assessed by restricted response questions. The questions could be a combination of multiple choice and/or short answers re a case study which presents a scenario where a child or young person discloses abuse. Alternatively, they could submit a report of approximately 500 words covering the Evidence Requirements.

Administrative Information

Unit code: F3S4 34

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Superclass category: PN

Original date of publication: August 2008

Version: 01

History of changes:

Version	Description of change	Date

Source: SQA

© Scottish Qualifications Authority 2008

This publication may be reproduced in whole or in part for educational purposes provided that no profit is derived from reproduction and that, if reproduced in part, the source is acknowledged.

SQA acknowledges the valuable contribution that Scotland's colleges have made to the development of Higher National qualifications.

Additional copies of this Unit specification can be purchased from the Scottish Qualifications Authority. Please contact the Customer Contact Centre for further details, telephone 0845 279 1000.

Higher National Unit specification: support notes

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

This part of the Unit specification is offered as guidance. The support notes are not mandatory.

While the exact time allocated to this Unit is at the discretion of the centre, the notional design length is 40 hours.

Guidance on the content and context for this Unit

In keeping with the Scottish Government's vision of a single integrated qualification and professional development framework, this Unit and the Group Award it belongs to has been aligned to the Standard for Childhood Practice, 2007. More specifically this Unit maps to elements of the following Standards:

- 2.1 — commitment to inclusion, diversity, social justice, anti-discrimination, and protecting and caring for children
- 3.1 — a broad and balanced knowledge and understanding of children and childhoods which underpins their practice and is used to inform their leadership of others
- 3.5 — a critical understanding of the principle features of local, national and international systems, and of policies, practices, and legal requirements relevant to the service
- 3.9 — knowledge and understanding needed to support evidence informed practice
- 4.1 — coordinate and lead the provision of environments that are safe, secure, caring, nurturing and inclusive
- 4.2 — development of positive and caring relationships with each child and family
- 4.6 — lead and support teamwork and collaboration.

Outcome 1 should actively engage candidates in reflecting on a wide view of promoting and safeguarding children and young people's rights in society and they should become familiar with the legislation designed to protect these rights. Candidates should be encouraged and supported to participate in class and group discussions which enable them to identify the principles such as equality, respect and dignity that such legislation is based upon. Specific principles such as seeking and listening to children's views and involving them in decision making should be emphasised as particularly relevant to the workplace. Rights to freedom, to education, to equality, to protection from exploitation should be explored. Personal values and attitudes should be identified and shared with the class allowing candidates to debate and challenge different perspectives.

The work of advocacy organisations such as Children In Scotland and the role of the Care Commission in advocating for children and young people's rights and in ensuring standards are implemented could be explored. Both of these organisations provide useful information on children and young people's rights on their websites. Candidates should be encouraged to become increasingly aware of the impact of relevant legislation regarding children's rights and to use research skills to consult a wide range of sources to examine at least three pieces of legislation in depth. Legislation, Codes of Practice, guidelines and charters are constantly evolving and there may be specific local guidance which would be important to examine. At all times the most current legislation should be used.

Higher National Unit specification: support notes (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Within Outcome 2, it is important for candidates to recognise that participation is not referring to involving children in activities and classing this as participation (ie 'I asked the child if she wanted to join in the game and she agreed'). Participation from the view of children's rights is more about encouraging the child's voice to be heard, recognising their views as important, and involving them in planning of activities and aspects of their lives. Although the theory and policy suggestions are not mandatory, Hart's Ladder of Participation is a good starting point to recognise difference between real participation and tokenism.

Current theory and policy may include:

- ◆ Hart's Ladder of Participation.
- ◆ participation being — ethical, safe, non-discriminatory, child friendly.
- ◆ citizenship and participation.
- ◆ participation is seen as one of the fundamental principals of UN Convention on Rights of Children particularly Article 12 which looks at the child's views being freely encouraged and supported. Also Articles 2, 3, and 6 relate to citizenship and rights of the child.
- ◆ Scottish Executive (now Scottish Government) research and policy — Schools Out, Scotland Working Together for Scotland's Children.
- ◆ power and the relationships between adults and children.

Participation methods may include:

- ◆ importance of adults giving time to listen to children and realising that the adult's view is not the child's view
- ◆ creating an environment where the child's voice and opinions can be freely expressed without fear of an adult saying no
- ◆ story telling, role-play, creative work, questionnaires are some methods to support participation

Useful Resources:

Hart, R. (1992). Children's Participation: from Tokenism to Citizenship. Innocenti Essay UNICEF, New York

Promoting Children's Meaningful and Ethical Participation (2002) Save the Children

Bailey R. (2000) Teaching Values and Citizenship across the Curriculum

Kogan Page London

Johnson, V. Hill, J. and Ivan-Smith, E. (1995) Listening to Smaller Voices: Children in an Environment of Change-Action Aid, London

Creighton S.J. Russell N (1995) Children's Rights, Participation and Attitudes - NSPCC Child Protection Research

www.childpolicy.org

www.savethechildren.net

www.scotland.gov.uk

www.ncb.org.uk

Within Outcome 3, lecturers should be aware of candidates own life experiences and be sensitive to their possible need for support in exploring this sensitive area. Candidates may have personal experience of emotional, physical or sexual abuse and may require support and/or referral to an appropriate agency.

Higher National Unit specification: support notes (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

The following is an extract from the Scottish Executive (now Scottish Government) Guidance 'It's Everyone's Job to Make Sure I'm Alright'

'Children may be in need of protection where their basic needs are not being met, in a manner appropriate to their stage of development, and they will be at risk through available acts of commission or omission on the part of their parent(s), sibling(s), or other relative(s), or a carer (ie the person(s) while not a parent who has actual custody of a child)'

It outlined five specific categories of child abuse which are those now outlined in national inter-agency guidance on child protection:

- ◆ Physical abuse is defined as 'actual or attempted physical injury to a child under the age of 16 where there is definite knowledge, or reasonable suspicion, that the injury was inflicted or knowingly not prevented.'

This may include a serious incident or a series of minor incidents involving bruising, fractures, scratches, burns or scalds; deliberate poisoning, attempted drowning or smothering, Munchausen Syndrome by Proxy, serious risk of or actual injuries resulting from parental lifestyle prior to birth, for instance substance abuse; physical chastisement deemed to be unreasonable.

- ◆ Sexual abuse 'Any child below the age of 16 may be deemed to have been sexually abused when any person(s) by design or neglect, exploits the child, directly or indirectly, in any activity intended to lead to the sexual arousal or other forms of gratification of that person or any other person(s) including organised networks. This definition holds whether or not there has been genital contact and whether or not the child is said to have initiated the behaviour.'

This may include such activities as incest, rape, sodomy of children; homosexual practices towards children; indecent assault of children; taking indecent photographs of children or encouraging them to become prostitutes or witness intercourse or pornographic materials. Activities involving sexual exploitation, particularly between young people, may be indicated by the presence of one or more of the following characteristics — lack of consent; inequalities in terms of chronological age, developmental stage or size, actual or threatened coercion.

- ◆ Non-organic failure to thrive occurs in 'Children who significantly fail to reach normal growth and developmental milestones (ie physical growth, weight, motor, social and intellectual development) where physical and genetic reasons have been medically eliminated and a diagnosis of failure to thrive has been established.'

Factors affecting a diagnosis may include inappropriate relationships between the care giver and child especially at mealtimes, for instance, the persistent withholding of food as punishment and the sufficiency and/or suitability of the food for the child. In its chronic form non-organic failure to thrive can result in greater susceptibility to more serious childhood illnesses, reduction in potential stature.

Higher National Unit specification: support notes (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

- ◆ Emotional abuse occurs when there is 'failure to provide for the child's basic emotional needs such as to have a severe effect on the behaviour and development of the child.'

This may include situations where, as a result of persistent behaviour by the parent(s) or care givers, children are rejected, denigrated or scapegoated; inappropriately punished; denied opportunities for exploration, play and socialisation appropriate to their stage of development or encouraged to engage in anti-social behaviour; put in a state of terror or extreme anxiety by the use of threats or practices designed to intimidate them; isolated from normal social experiences, preventing the child from forming friendships. Children who are left alone for long periods, are under stimulated or suffer sensory deprivation, especially in infancy; who do not experience adequate nurturing or who are subject to a large number of caregivers may also come into this category. Sustained or repeated abuse of this type is likely in the longer term to result in failures or disruptions of development of personality, inability to form secure relationships and may additionally have an effect on intellectual development and educational attainment.

- ◆ Physical neglect 'occurs when a child's essential needs are not met and this is likely to cause impairment to physical health and development. Such needs include food, clothing, cleanliness, shelter and warmth. A lack of appropriate care results in persistent or severe exposure, through negligence to circumstances which endanger the child.'

Physical neglect may also include a failure to secure appropriate medical treatment for the child, or when an adult carer persistently pursues or allows the child to follow a lifestyle inappropriate to the child's developmental needs or which jeopardises the child's health.

Additional definitions of other types of child abuse are also outlined in this document but it is likely that the areas above would be the main focus of this Outcome.

Definitions of abuse also change over time, as do the procedures regarding how children in need of care and protection should be recorded. Current Scottish Government guidance and local Child Protection Area Committee's guidance should be referenced throughout.

Caution should be exercised when exploring indicators of abuse as they may also have alternative explanations and do not always mean that abuse has occurred. A range of indicators of abuse should be covered including physical evidence such as bruises or physical injuries, behavioural signs such as a significant change in temperament or direct disclosure of abuse. The importance of developing open, trusting, effective relationships with children, young people and their carers should be stressed.

The development of listening skills, importance of asking open questions and good observational skills should be emphasised as children often disclose in indirect ways. As children are unique individuals their experience of and their reaction to abuse will be individual. Care should be taken not to assume the short or long-term effects of abuse on the child but to explore a range of possible reactions and consequences.

Higher National Unit specification: support notes (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People’s Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Possible effects of abuse on children and young people

Physical injury

Possible effects include — stunted growth and failure to thrive; a state of ‘frozen watchfulness’; fear of strangers; solitariness; aggressive behaviour; learning difficulties.

Emotional abuse

The possible effects of such abuse are a failure to grow and to thrive; delay in language development; withdrawal; attention-seeking behaviour; anxiety; inability to express feelings; lack of self-esteem; resistance to trying new experiences; inability to make choices.

Physical neglect

Possible effects of neglect include a failure to grow and to thrive; delay in language and cognitive development; failure to develop self-sufficiency in personal care; low self-esteem; lack of security; risk of accidents through lack of supervision; failure by child to learn discipline and limits of behaviour.

Sexual abuse

Possible effects include bowel or bladder symptoms; unwanted pregnancy or sexually transmitted disease; inappropriate sexualised behaviour; low self-esteem; passivity or compliance; absconding; self-injury; depression.

Non-organic failure to thrive

Possible effects include lack of physical growth; poor weight gain; delay in motor, social and intellectual development.

Multiple abuse

Children may experience a combination of several of these types of abuse. Emotional abuse, for example is usually a feature of other types of abuse.

During the course of this Outcome candidates may wish to discuss possible reasons why abuse occurs in our society. The emphasis in this Unit is on increasing awareness of possible issues arising in protecting children and young people and being clear and consistent in the response to children and young people. In any discussion of the controversial area of why children are vulnerable to abuse, candidates should be encouraged not to make assumptions about reasons why abuse may have occurred.

The following extract and the associated literature review provided in the Scottish Executive (now Scottish Government) document ‘It’s Everyone’s Job to Make Sure I’m Alright’ may be useful to challenge stereotypes and provides a useful analysis of the many different theories as to why and by whom abuse occurs.

‘Virtually all researchers point to the dangers of adopting single cause explanations of child abuse. The term ‘child abuse’ covers a range of behaviours and problems so a search for a single or even a cluster of causes is likely to be in vain.

Higher National Unit specification: support notes (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People’s Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

The research findings are also inconclusive in relation to the causes of child abuse and neglect. It is likely that all the various theories which have been put forward as explanations of child abuse may play a part but no single theory can adequately account for the complexity of the problem. Research has attempted to identify the characteristics of abusers and of victims of abuse and has identified a range of factors which may be associated with an increased risk of abuse but are not in themselves sufficient to suggest that abuse will occur. It is increasingly being recognised that multi-focus or integrated theories of child abuse may offer the best way forward. They suggest that risk does not arise from a single causal factor but from a combination of multiple interacting elements which are located at the individual, family, community and societal levels. Such theories are useful because they suggest that intervention to prevent or reduce child abuse needs to focus on the individual, family and community as well as on society as a whole.

Guest speakers from a variety of agencies/services involved in the support and protection of individuals who have experienced abuse would enrich the candidates learning experience.

Candidates should, after developing an understanding of the different types of abuse and their possible impact on children and young people, share their own workplace experience of child protection policies and examine examples of centres policies, protocols and procedures. The relationship between these and the statutory framework could be examined.

Local Child Protection Area Committees should prove a useful source of information on local policies and services and procedures for recording and reporting suspected abuse. It is important that candidates are confident and assured of the need to share any concerns with their line manager.

Candidates could be encouraged to explore anxieties in relation to reporting abuse or suspected abuse, responding to disclosure and the importance of ‘whistleblowing’ policies.

WhistleBlowing — ‘The disclosure by an employee (or professional) of confidential information which relates to some danger, fraud, or other illegal or unethical conduct connected with the workplace be it of the employer or of fellow employees’ (Lord Barrie QC 1995). Taken from ‘National Care Standards Early Education and Childcare’ Scottish Executive.

In discussing the possible disclosure of abuse by a child/young person it is important to develop confidence in listening to children and young people, following recording and reporting procedures, seeking and accepting support, maintaining the child/young person’s rights and understanding that they must not make false promises as it is vital not to give the impression or assurance that what is disclosed will not be shared with others.

At all times current legislation should be referenced in the delivery of this Unit.

Higher National Unit specification: support notes (cont)

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

Guidance on the delivery and assessment of this Unit

This Unit is designed to be delivered as part of the Group Award HNC G7CX 15 Early Education and Childcare. Outcomes 1 and 2 could be integrated with the Curriculum and Assessment in an Early Years and Childcare Setting, (F353 34) Unit.

The Unit could also be offered on a standalone basis as CPD to update practitioners' knowledge and skills in the subject area.

Opportunities for developing Core Skills

There is no automatic certification of Core Skills or a Core Skill component in this Unit. However there may be opportunities to develop the Core Skills of Communication and Information Technology to SCQF level 6 required by occupations in early years and childcare or progression pathways supported by the HNC Early Education and Childcare.

Open learning

This Unit could be developed for open learning mode of delivery.

Candidates with disabilities and/or additional support needs

The additional support needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments, or considering alternative Outcomes for Units. Further advice can be found in the SQA document Guidance on Assessment Arrangements for Candidates with Disabilities and/or Additional Support Needs (www.sqa.org.uk).

General information for candidates

Unit title: Children and Young People's Rights: Provision, Protection and Participation

This Unit is designed to explore the various legislation, policies and guidelines which aim to safeguard the rights of children and young people in Scotland. You will be involved in exploring your own and others' attitudes to children and young people's rights and responsibilities and how these influence practice in early years and childcare settings. You will also examine the adult's role in supporting and facilitating children's participation. During the course of the Unit you will also evaluate policies and procedures in place in early years and childcare settings regarding the protection of children and young people.

You may have the opportunity to develop the Core Skills of Communication and Information Technology to SCQF level 6 in this Unit, although there is no automatic certification of Core Skills or Core Skills components.

As part of the assessment for Outcome 1 you may be asked to give a short oral presentation or do a report/essay outlining your understanding of current legislation. This will provide you with the opportunity to explore your own attitudes and values towards the promotion of children and young people's rights.

For Outcome 2 you may be assessed by a report/essay of 750–1,000 words which should be referenced. This report/essay should look at children's participation in the childcare setting. If you give an oral presentation this should last about 15 minutes maximum and have a minimum of 10 slides.

For Outcome 3 you could be assessed by restricted response questions. Alternatively, you could submit a report of approximately 500 words covering the Evidence Requirements.

The assessments methods used for this Unit will be decided by your lecturer.