1 Introduction

This is the Arrangements Document for the new Group Awards in Practical Journalism, which were validated in July 2007. This document includes: background information on the development of the Group Award, its aims, guidance on access, details of the Group Award structure, and guidance on delivery.

2 Rationale for the development of the Group Awards

Over recent years there has been a steady convergence of print and broadcast journalism with journalists required to have skills in both areas. The demands on journalists with 24 hour news reporting and a multi-skilled approach to working in the industry have been reflected in these new awards.

The new awards take account of:

- ◆ The need for a qualification with specialist provision accommodated within a flexible structure
- ◆ Units which allow for progression, meet the HN design principles and SCQF requirements
- ◆ Link with and articulate to other awards
- ◆ Units which at a later stage could be used in small specialist qualifications which could be used by experienced personnel in the media industry to extend their skills and provide continuing professional development.
- ◆ Specialist vocational skills and knowledge
- ◆ Underpinning Core Skills relating to the specialist field (in this case Journalism)
- ◆ Core, transferable life skills appropriate to employment in this area,
 - (eg Communication skills, team working skills, ICT competence)
- ◆ Flexibility to specialize in a given field or medium, eg print, online, broadcast
- ◆ Content at a level and depth appropriate to industry needs (and as prescribed for this level of qualification with the SCQF)
- ◆ Units which may allow articulation to NCTJ certification
- ◆ Units which map with National Occupational Standards

This programme is structured to provide an HNC qualification after one year of successful study and HND on completion of Year 2. The proposed content of this course is organised for delivery over each year within a mandatory section and a series of options which allow for Colleges to design tailored programmes for group study. In all 12 credits are required for the HNC award and 30 credits for the HND award.

Market Research

Studies of occupational change such as that carried out for Future Skills Scotland Expert Briefing (The Demand for and Use of Skills in the Modern Economy — Professor Crane) show that higher skilled occupations have been growing the fastest over recent years and are projected to continue to grow at a fast rate.

Broad skill requirements of jobs in the UK economy have risen in the last 2 decades requiring longer cumulative period of training and on-the-job training. Two distinct types of skills needed for employment can be identified:

- ◆ ‘Technical skills’ which are occupation-specific skills which are needed to be able to carry out particular jobs.
- ◆ ‘Generic skills’ which are the skills that are needed in various way in a wide range of jobs. Prominent among these, in recent years, has been IT skills but several other generic skills have been identified as potentially important such as communication, team working and problem-solving. These skills are relevant in jobs at all SCQF levels. Additionally, basic skills of literacy and numeracy are also important.

Throughout these awards technical skills are incorporated and the generic Core Skills have been signposted to ensure that those undertaking the HNC/HND Practical Journalism have a qualification which meets the need of 21st century journalism.

The effect of new media on radio, television, print and the internet has led to dramatic changes in the world of journalism. This has inevitably led to moves by employers to introduce new working practices covering digital developments as they seek more flexibility from journalists. These new practices include a growing necessity for journalists to write for web pages and digital versions of various media. These new developments inevitably impact on the teaching and learning of journalism, as employers expect an ever wider range of skills from potential employees.

Journalism remains a vibrant industry, with 4,000 members of the NUJ in Scotland alone and some 32,000 in England and Wales. There are hundreds of small publishers of magazines while web sites appear at a phenomenal rate. The main employers in Scotland include: Johnston Press, Newsquest, Trinity, Express papers along with groups like Clyde & Forth, Scottish Provincial Press, EMAP, SMG and BBC.

The following information from Careers Scotland indicates that creative workers in journalism, publishing, advertising, multimedia, television and radio broadcasting are one of the UK’s fastest growing occupational groups.

Publishing is the largest of the creative industries in the UK, and it has a considerable impact on UK employment. Electronic and digital publishing is the main area of rapid growth. The forecasted growth in the sector to 2007 is 4%.

Figures available from Careers Scotland show that 3,900 people were working as ‘journalists, newspaper and periodical editors’ as defined by the UK government in Scotland.

It is estimated that running up to 2008 there will be a need for 1,000 new employees in the broader occupational category of ‘Media Associate Professionals’.

The Government’s ‘Media Associate Professional’ category includes broadcast journalists in radio and television who work as reporters, sub editors or writers.

Journalists are now expected to be able to shoot on video, edit on digital edit systems to produce a television news item, record a news piece suitable for radio broadcast and write up the same story for the internet.

Due to advances in digital technology, job roles and requirements have become blurred and flexibility with multi-skilling is now required across all areas of journalism.

The diverse role of the journalist has been taken into account in designing these awards.

Systematic Market Research has been carried out and in addition to the above short summary of the industry-wide situation, the following sources have been surveyed.

- ◆ employers in the newspaper printing industry
- ◆ employers in the radio industry
- ◆ employers in the television industry
- ◆ professional bodies
- ◆ relevant Higher Education establishments
- ◆ former candidates
- ◆ feedback from current candidates

3 Aims of the Group Awards

The aims of the HNC/HND in Practical Journalism have been divided into general aims and specific aims.

3.1 Aims of the HNC

General

- 1 To develop the candidate's knowledge and skills such as planning, analysing and synthesising.
- 2 To develop employment skills and enhance the candidate's employment prospects.
- 3 To enable progression within the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework.
- 4 To develop study and research skills.
- 5 To develop transferable skills including Core Skills.
- 6 To provide academic stimulus and challenge, and foster an enjoyment of the subject.

Specific

The specific aims of the proposed HNC Practical Journalism are:

- 7 To develop the candidate's knowledge of the English language and skills in journalistic writing conventions.
- 8 To prepare the candidate for employment in print, radio, television or web based journalism.
- 9 To develop a range of contemporary vocational skills and competences appropriate to the conditions prevailing in current vocational practice.
- 10 To foster an awareness of the structure, composition and broad range of operational practices of print & broadcast journalism.
- 11 To prepare the candidate for further study in this field.

3.2 Aims of the HND

General

- 12 To further develop the candidate's knowledge and skills such as detailed planning, critically analysing and synthesising.
- 13 To develop employment skills and enhance the candidate's employment prospects.
- 14 To enable progression within the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework.
- 15 To develop study and research skills.
- 16 To develop transferable skills including Core Skills to the SCQF Levels demanded by employers and for progression into Higher Education and to degree award(s).
- 17 To provide academic stimulus and challenge, and foster an enjoyment of the subject.

Specific

The specific aims of the HND Practical Journalism are similar to those of the HNC above, except that candidates would expect to enter employment in the field of Journalism at a more advanced stage and to have more in depth technical skills supported by a portfolio demonstrating a body of work in print, online or broadcast fields. In particular the HND SCQF Level programme develops the following additional specific aims:

- 18 To develop the candidate's knowledge of the English language and skills in journalistic writing conventions.
- 19 To develop planning & time management skills essential to professional journalism.
- 20 To develop research, interview and presentation skills central to professional journalistic competence.
- 21 To provide a broad foundation in the range of digital/ICT systems and applications appropriate to the needs of print media.
- 22 Where appropriate to specialism, to develop the required underpinning practical and technical skills appropriate to the needs of broadcast and/or on line journalism.

- 23 To develop a knowledge of national, regional, legal requirements and protocols which relate to the industry.
- 24 To extend the range of knowledge of areas appropriate to chosen specialist vocational area within the field (ie arts, sport, international, etc).
- 25 Prepare and develop the candidate for employment in print, radio and television.

3.3 Target groups

The HNC and HND Practical Journalism awards are designed to offer a broadly based education through establishing a balance between practical journalism skills, Core Skills and a programme of relevant supporting Units which will help candidates prepare for employment and self-employment and articulate to Higher Education.

The awards will also meet the vocational needs of those already in employment in the media industry or those seeking to enhance their employment opportunities within their existing jobs. The award is also attractive to mature returners to education who wish to develop existing skills or change direction into the media industry.

3.4 Employment opportunities

The HNC and HND Practical Journalism awards are designed to prepare candidates for employment in print, radio and/or television.

4 Access to Group Awards

4.1 Entry to the award

The awards are intended to provide opportunities across the sector, and therefore include wide access arrangements for candidates.

While access to the awards will be at the discretion of the centre, it would be beneficial if candidates possessed any of the following for access to the proposed HNC Practical Journalism or first year HND Practical Journalism:

- ◆ Two Highers one of which should be English or course component Units
- ◆ Scottish Group Award: Communication and Media (Higher), Arts-Social Sciences (Higher)
- ◆ Appropriate HNC or degree
- ◆ Equivalent qualification or relevant work experience
- ◆ Equivalent international qualifications, providing the competences can be identified and are appropriate.

Centres offering the HNC/D should offer pre-entry guidance to ensure applicants have an appropriate level of English. This could be done through tests and applicants may be asked to provide a folio of relevant work.

In addition, it is recommended that candidates should possess the following Core Skills profile on entry.

Core Skill	SCQF level
Communication	SCQF level 5
Using Number	SCQF level 5
ICT	SCQF level 5
Problem Solving	SCQF level 5
Working with Others	SCQF level 5

Where candidates do not come with an existing Core Skills profile, it is recommended that the centre consider carrying out a Core Skills profiling exercise.

4.2 Articulation to HND — 2nd Year

While articulation to the second year of the HND course will be at the discretion of the centre it is envisaged that candidates would have achieved 15 credits before entering the 2nd year of the course. This will include all the Mandatory Units for the HNC (including the Graded Unit). Where a full HNC Practical Journalism or equivalent has been achieved but the candidate does not have 15 credits, it is recommended that an individual learning plan is formulated for the candidate so that it is clear on entry where the candidate would gain the Units required to make up a full HND.

4.3 Distance Learning

The HNC and the HND awards include some Units which may be suitable for Open or Distance Learning. For some Units working in teams is a requirement, however this should not preclude distance learning. In these circumstances e-teams or virtual teams could be organised. In real terms, the practical nature of work in the media industries involves interaction and working together with a group, and in order to develop such skills attendance at a centre with access to specialised equipment available would be a preferred option for the course. Flexible part time study with open delivery may be a practical option where a candidate is in employment in a media related post.

It is recommended that centres will require to ensure adequate preparation is made to supervise assessment and reassessment of closed-book and Graded Units to ensure the authenticity of the evidence provided by the candidate. To assist centres there is a SQA publication Assessment and Quality Assurance for Open and Distance Learning, SQA February, 2001.

5 Group Awards structure

5.1 Frameworks

Structure of HNC Practical Journalism

Summary of Design Principles for HNC:

- ◆ Be at SCQF level 7 and have 96 SCQF credit points (12 Unit credits)
- ◆ Have a minimum of 48 SCQF credits (6 Unit credits) at SCQF level 7
- ◆ Have one Graded Unit of 8 SCQF points at SCQF level 7
- ◆ Have a mandatory section with a minimum of 48 SCQF credit points (6 Unit credits), including the Graded Unit.

The candidate must achieve a minimum of 48 SCQF credit points at SCQF level 7 to achieve the Group Award.

It is recommended that current candidates whether part-time or full-time who are in the process of completing the old awards complete the existing HNC or HND rather than switching to the revised awards. However, there may be occasions when it is not possible for candidates to complete the existing awards, eg where they were unable to complete their studies due to ill health or difficulties with their employer and where the centre has gone on to offer the new award and only 1 or 2 Units need to be completed. In these cases it is recommended that the following suggested Credit Transfer arrangements be considered.

These Credit Transfer arrangements should be regarded as guidelines and centres should bear in mind that the award has been revised to update the skills required in the industry and these skills are considered to be essential to employment in journalism.

The following table indicates credit transfer from old Units to the Units of the new HNC/HND Practical Journalism

6 Approaches to delivery and assessment

6.1 Content and Context

The skills now demanded in print journalism and related broadcast media industries are diverse and varied and this is reflected in the number of Units and specialisms which the awards encompass. The skills developed will include those of planning and time management, research, interview, communication and presentation, working with others and information technology. In addition, practical skills in news writing, feature writing, shorthand, editing for video and radio, video camera skills, scripting for television and radio, desktop publishing, reporting and sub editing should be selected from the specialist optional Units within these awards.

Work experience helps candidates prepare for employment or freelance work. Packs are available from National Union of Journalists (NUJ) and Broadcasting Entertainment Cinematograph and Theatre Union (BECTU) regarding employment rights and health and safety.

6.2 Delivery and Assessment

During the design of the award, Units from other disciplines have been used where it was decided that the national recognition of these Units was important, eg those from Desktop Publishing, Creative Industries, Television and Radio areas. Dedicated specialist Units were also written where these were needed.

It is intended that these awards are delivered as coherent, integrated award(s) of study and that the selected options reflect the specialist nature of the journalism discipline selected by the candidate or centre.

The content of each Unit will be delivered through a series of lectures, practical workshops and activities which will be carried out as part of the candidate's commitment to self directed study. Tutorial sessions should be set up to support candidates through this programme and will build their confidence as they progress through their programme of study. The learning content will increase the candidate's ability to create a quality portfolio of work. Each Unit can be assessed individually and the candidate will be expected to hand in work to meet specified deadlines. Meeting the deadlines is an essential element of the course. During the learning process the candidate's skills in the following areas will be developed.

- ◆ Organising
- ◆ Communicating
- ◆ Research
- ◆ Logical and Analytical thinking
- ◆ Decision making
- ◆ Problem Solving
- ◆ Co-operating with others (Teamwork)
- ◆ Vocational Adaptability

The main topics of study include:

- ◆ News Writing
- ◆ Feature Writing
- ◆ Research & Interview Skills
- ◆ Sub Editing
- ◆ Shorthand
- ◆ Scots Law
- ◆ Public Affairs
- ◆ Journalism: Online Reporting

Specialist topics include:

- ◆ Broadcast Journalism
- ◆ Newspaper and Magazine Journalism
- ◆ Photography

The course content reflects the needs of the diverse aspects of the media industry. This programme of study gives the candidate the opportunity to develop the skills and gain the underpinning knowledge necessary for work in all aspects of journalism.

It is recommended that candidates who want to enter the journalism profession after the achievement of the HND should attain Shorthand at 100 wpm.

The Mandatory section of each award covers those topics essential to a career in Journalism whether that specialism is in Print or Broadcast. The selection of the optional Units would determine the specialist nature of the award.

The Graded Units in these awards are both projects, practical assignments. The choice of a practical assignment fits well with practical awards and both centres and the employers consulted felt it was appropriate to have practical activities which reflected the content of the awards.

Delivery through Open Learning may be available or suitable for some aspects of the course.

Examples of how Core Skills can be developed.

The following could be used for delivering Core Skills, or elements of Core Skills not embedded in Units or assessment but where teaching and learning activities can provide opportunities to integrate Core Skills.

Unit	Core Skills
Journalism: Research and Interview Skills (F1RD 34)	Communication Information and Communication Technology
Journalism: News Writing (F1N9 34) Journalism: Feature Writing (F1N2 34)	Communication Information and Communication Technology
HNC Journalism: Graded Unit — Project (F1X4 34)	Working with Others Communication Problem Solving Information and Communication Technology
HNC Practical Journalism (G8L1 15)	Provides a grounded approach to Core Skills which will be developed in the HND Practical Journalism (G8L2 16) award.

Integration of Assessment

The integration of assessments is most likely to take place within, as well as between Units. The Unit specifications were written with the aim of providing opportunities for integration to delivering centres who want to offer a project-based course reflecting particular specialisms.

It is intended, also, that this structure will enable a smooth transition from the old award to the new award. The information provided under Section 5.3 Transition Arrangements should be used as a guide to identifying appropriate integration points to this end.

	Journalism: News-writing	Journalism: Feature Writing	Journalism: Scots Law	Journalism: Research & Interview Skills	Journalism: Public Affairs	Journalism: Sub Editing	Shorthand (60wpm)	HNC Practical Journalism: Graded Unit Project

These suggested integrated points should not be seen as prescriptive but should be used as a guide to the scope of integration for delivering centres devising their own programmes. There are several Units in the HND options which were written within the award, specifically to enable an integrated approach.

Journalism: Research and Interview Skills (F1RD 34)	Journalism: News Writing (F1N9 34) Journalism: Feature Writing (F1N2 34) Shorthand as a Skill (Introductory) (60 wpm) (DE27 34) Journalism: Specialist Reporting (F1N5 35)
Journalism: Online Reporting (F1N8 35)	Internet Web Development (DF60 35) Multimedia: Video with Audio (DM36 34) Journalism: News Writing (F1N9 34)

6.3 Suggested full-time Programme of Study

The programmes suggested in Appendix 1 indicate how skills are built up during a one year and two year course. The examples given show indicative Units for programmes specialising in Print Journalism and Broadcast. These suggested delivery patterns should not be seen as prescriptive but should be used as guides for delivering centres devising their own programmes. The placing of the Graded Units is of particular importance as their placement in the academic year enables candidates to develop journalism skills as well as their knowledge and skills in technical areas.

6.4 Open Learning

The HNC and the HND awards include some Units which may be suitable for Open or Distance Learning. For some Units working in teams is a requirement, however this should not preclude distance learning. In these circumstances e-teams or virtual teams could be organised. In real terms, the practical nature of work in the media industries involves interaction and working together with a group, and in order to develop such skills attendance at a centre with access to specialised equipment available would be a preferred option for the course. Flexible part time study with open delivery may be a practical option where a candidate is in employment in a media related post.

It is recommended that centres will require to ensure adequate preparation is made to supervise assessment and reassessment of closed-book and Graded Units to ensure the authenticity of the evidence provided by the candidate. To assist centres there is a SQA publication Assessment and Quality Assurance for Open and Distance Learning, SQA February, 2001.

7 General information for centres

Disabled candidates and/or those with additional support needs

The additional support needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments, or considering whether any reasonable adjustments may be required. Further advice can be found on our website www.sqa.org.uk/assessmentarrangements.

Internal and external verification

All instruments of assessment used within this/these Group Award(s) should be internally verified, using the appropriate policy within the centre and the guidelines set by SQA.

External verification will be carried out by SQA to ensure that internal assessment is within the national guidelines for these qualifications.

Further information on internal and external verification can be found in SQA's Guide to Assessment (www.sqa.org.uk).

8 General information for candidates

The HNC and HND in Practical Journalism are intended for candidates wishing to follow a vocational education in journalism.

Who should apply for this course?

This course would best suit those:

- ◆ who wish to work in journalism
- ◆ who wish to work in the print industry
- ◆ who wish to work in broadcast production
- ◆ employees working in the print and broadcast industries who wish to enhance their existing skills
- ◆ mature returners to education who wish to make a career change.

Staff in colleges will usually interview course applicants to ascertain suitability and consider any support needs.

Candidates are expected to enter the HNC/HND Practical Journalism with some practical skills in IT, including basic word processing, email and Internet skills.

Individual centres should make special provision for candidates who do not meet this skills profile.

Candidates will then progress to develop these IT skills in specialist packages across the HNC/HND course.

Within the HNC/HND in Practical Journalism you will study News and Feature Writing, Scots Law, Research and Interview skills, Sub Editing and Social and Ethical Issues.

You will have an opportunity to gain work experience within the journalism industry and you will be introduced to Shorthand.

From there you will go on to advanced study of the Units mentioned previously and you will have the opportunity to specialise in a particular area of journalism such as Print, Radio, Television or the Internet.

The awards are designed to prepare you for entry into 2nd or 3rd year degree programmes at Higher Education Institutes or for employment within the journalism industry.

You will develop a range of general skills, for example:

- ◆ planning and analysing
- ◆ problem solving
- ◆ communication skills
- ◆ to work co-operatively with others
- ◆ study and research skills
- ◆ IT skills
- ◆ Writing Skills

In addition the HNC/HND in Practical Journalism will:

- ◆ enable progression within the SCQF including progression to degree programmes
- ◆ provide opportunities for career planning and enhancing your employment prospects

You will also develop a range of skills specific to the study of Practical Journalism including:

- ◆ develop your knowledge of the English language and skills in journalistic writing conventions
- ◆ time management and planning skills essential to professional journalism
- ◆ develop research, interview and presentations skills
- ◆ develop a broad foundation in the range of digital and ICT systems and applications used in print media
- ◆ develop specialist skills underpinning the practical and technical skills required in broadcast or online journalism
- ◆ knowledge of national, regional, legal requirements and protocols
- ◆ extend the range of knowledge of areas appropriate to your chosen specialist vocational area
- ◆ prepare you for employment in the journalism industry

The subject specific Units are assessed using mainly open and closed-book essays and reports.

As well as undertaking assessment for subject specific Units you will also be required to undertake major projects in the Graded Units.

The purpose of these assessments is to integrate the knowledge and skills you have gained during your period of study.

9 Glossary of terms

SCQF: This stands for the Scottish Credit and Qualification Framework, which is a new way of speaking about qualifications and how they inter-relate. We use SCQF terminology throughout this guide to refer to credits and levels. For further information on the SCQF visit the SCQF website at www.scqf.org.uk

SCQF credit points: One HN credit is equivalent to 8 SCQF credit points. This applies to all HN Units, irrespective of their level.

SCQF levels: The SCQF covers 12 levels of learning. HN Units will normally be at levels 6–9. Graded Units will be at level 7 and 8.

Subject Unit: Subject Units contain vocational/subject content and are designed to test a specific set of knowledge and skills.

Graded Unit: Graded Units assess candidates' ability to integrate what they have learned while working towards the Units of the Group Award. Their purpose is to add value to the Group Award, making it more than the sum of its parts, and to encourage candidates to retain and adapt their skills and knowledge.

Dedicated Unit to cover Core Skills: This is a non-subject Unit that is written to cover one or more particular Core Skills.

Embedded Core Skills: This is where the development of a Core Skill is incorporated into the Unit and where the Unit assessment also covers the requirements of Core Skill assessment at a particular level.

Signposted Core Skills: This refers to the opportunities to develop a particular Core Skill at a specified level that lie outwith automatic certification.

Qualification Design Team: The QDT works in conjunction with a Qualification Manager/Development Manager to steer the development of the HNC/HND from its inception/revision through to validation. The group is made up of key stakeholders representing the interests of centres, employers, universities and other relevant organisations.

Consortium-devised HNCs and HNDs are those developments or revisions undertaken by a group of centres in partnership with SQA.

Specialist single centre and specialist collaborative devised HNCs and HNDs are those developments or revisions led by a single centre or small group of centres who provide knowledge and skills in a specialist area. Like consortium-devised HNCs and HNDs, these developments or revisions will also be supported by SQA.
