Answer Section 1 and Section 2.

100 marks are allocated to this paper.

Section 1

Answer the questions on EITHER POWER AND FREEDOM

OR RELIGION AND BELIEF.

40 marks are allocated to this Section.

EITHER

POWER AND FREEDOM

Read the passages carefully, and answer ALL the questions which follow. In your answers you should demonstrate evidence of wider reading.

Passage A

Cimon was as rich as a tyrant. He performed his public duties no matter the expense and gave money to many of the citizens—they could go to him every day and obtain money for necessities. His land was open to all, and everyone helped themselves to his fruit.

Aristotle, The Athenian Constitution, 27.3 [4th century BC]

Passage B

I shall act and speak as best I can in the interests of the Athenian people and their allies; and I will not revolt from the Athenian people in word or in deed, nor will I listen to others who suggest such. I will support the Athenian people and not desert to the enemy; I will not destroy democracy at Colophon, either of my own will nor listen to others who suggest such by revolting or going over to another city or by causing civil war here.

Stone inscription at Colophon, 447/6 [5th century BC]

Passage C

The management of slaves is likely to prove difficult at the best of times. Unless they are kept in hand, they become insolent and consider themselves as good as their masters; if harshly treated they are embittered and conspire against them.

Aristotle, The Politics, Book 2B.1.1 [4th century BC]

Passage D

The Senate voted that Augustus should be tribune for life and gave him the privilege of bringing before the Senate at each meeting any one matter at whatever time he liked, even if he were not consul at the time; they also permitted him to hold once and for all and for life the office of proconsul . . . and they gave him in the subject territory authority superior to that of the governor in each instance.

Cassius Dio, Roman History, 53.32.5–6 [2nd/3rd century AD]

Passage E

Old Trimalchio? Well he's worth millions of millions. His porter looks after more silver than any other man alive. As for his slaves—I don't think ten percent of them know their own master. Trimalchio is the best businessman anywhere!

Petronius, Satyricon, Section 37 [1st century AD]

Passage F

There was a major disturbance among the slaves in Apulia. The praetor Lucius Postumius made a rigorous enquiry into the conspiracy . . . He sentenced nearly seven thousand men; although many fled from the area, punishment was inflicted on many others.

Livy, The History of Rome, 39.29 [1st century BC/1st century AD]

RELIGION AND BELIEF

Read the passages carefully, and answer ALL the questions which follow. In your answers you should demonstrate evidence of wider reading.

Passage A

To Zeus also were born, they say, the goddesses Eileithyia and her helper Artemis. Eileithyia received the care of expectant mothers and the alleviation of the pains of childbirth; and for this reason women when they are in peril of this nature call first of all on this goddess.

Diodorus Siculus, Library of History 5.72.5 [1st century BC]

Passage B

There (at Delphi) the lord Phoebus Apollo resolved to make his lovely temple, and spoke as follows: “In this place I intend to build a glorious temple to be an oracle for men, and here they will always bring perfect sacrifices, both the people who live in the rich Peloponnese and the men of Europe and from all the wave-washed islands, coming to question me. And I will deliver to them advice that cannot fail, answering them in my rich temple.”

Homeric Hymn to Apollo, 11. 285–293 [6th century BC]

Passage C

Appease the almighty gods with offerings and sacrifices, when you go to bed and when the holy light returns. So they may have kindly feelings towards you, and you may buy other people’s land, not have someone else buy yours.

Hesiod, Works and Days, 338–341 [7th century BC]

Passage D

Make an offering of cakes to Janus, with these words: “Father Janus, in offering these cakes, I humbly beg that you will be gracious and merciful to me and my children and my household.”

Cato, On Agriculture, 134 [2nd century BC]

Passage E

The state was at this time suddenly occupied with a question of a religious nature, in consequence of the discovery of a prediction in the Sibylline Books, which had been inspected on account of there having been so many showers of stones this year. It ran thus: “Whensoever a foreign enemy should bring war into the land of Italy, he may be driven out of Italy and conquered, if the Idaean Mother (Cybele) should be brought from Pessinus to Rome.”

Livy, History of Rome 29.10,4–5 [1st century BC/1st century AD]

Passage F

May the gods, one and all, damn the guy who from this day forth ever sacrifices a single victim to Venus, or offers a single grain of incense. Six times today I’ve sacrificed a lamb, but I haven’t been able to do one sacrifice that suits Venus. So, seeing I can’t get good omens, I’ve gone straight off in a rage myself—telling them not to cut off the god’s share of the meat . . . And that entrail man—not worth a penny—he really was worthy of the goddess, when he said that all the innards foretold disaster for me.”

Plautus, The Little Carthaginian, 449 – 466 [2nd century BC]
