In common with all courses, this course includes 40 hours over and above the 120 hours for the component units. This is for induction, extending the range of learning and teaching approaches, support, consolidation, integration of learning and preparation for external assessment. This time is an important element of the course and advice on its use is included in the course details.

RATIONALE

A general rationale for the study of History by candidates over the age of 16 can be found in the Introduction to the Arrangements Document, along with a list of aims deriving from it. These all apply at all levels of History.

The aims of the Intermediate 2 History course are to acquire breadth and depth in the knowledge and understanding of historical themes and to develop skills of explaining historical developments and events, drawing conclusions and evaluating historical sources. These aims will be achieved through study of a range of contexts. All three units in the course have a common set of outcomes and performance criteria.

The outcomes of the units and the criteria for the course assessment require candidates to select information from recall and from sources. This has to be organised to explain developments and events and thence to address historical questions, drawing a series of comments together to a relevant conclusion. In addition, candidates will be expected to interpret and evaluate a range of primary and secondary sources.

Candidates will have the opportunity to achieve these outcomes through the study of a range of historical contexts, which cover both Scottish/British History and European/ World History and three historical periods, Medieval, Early Modern and Later Modern. At this level, there is freedom to study from any of these periods and Scottish History may occupy up to two thirds of the course.

COURSE CONTENT

Selection of contexts

Candidates will be required to select three contexts, one from the list of topics for the Scottish and British unit, one from the list of topics for the European and World unit and the context for the third unit should be from either list. Each unit includes specific historical themes.

All of the content in chosen options will be subject to sampling in the external assessment.

When units are taken as component parts of a course, candidates will have the opportunity to achieve at levels beyond that required to attain each of the unit outcomes. This attainment may, where appropriate, be recorded and used to contribute towards course estimates, and to provide evidence for appeals. Additional details are provided, where appropriate, with the exemplar assessment materials. Further information on the key principles of assessment are provided in the paper, Assessment, published in May 1996.

DETAILS OF INSTRUMENTS FOR EXTERNAL ASSESSMENT

External course assessment will consist of two parts:

Extended Response Int 2 (1 hour)

Candidates will produce an Extended Response on a question of their choice drawn from any one of the three contexts that they have studied in the three course units.

The question selected must relate to the content of the Int 2 History course and must allow candidates to organise their research and reach their own conclusion. The response is worth 20 marks.

Prior to producing the Extended Response, students will arrange to research the chosen question by identifying and obtaining sources from a range of familiar and unfamiliar material. These sources may be primary and/or secondary and may cover a variety of types eg texts, video and audio tapes, pictures and photographs.

The research exercise should make efficient use of the time and resources available. Candidates should then prepare a final plan, using the results of the research investigation. This plan should not exceed 150 words and should use the proforma provided. The candidate will take the plan into the classroom and use it to complete the Extended Response within a continuous period of 1 hour under supervision by the teacher/lecturer.

COURSE                      History (Intermediate 2)

The candidate's plan will be submitted along with the Extended Response. The Extended Response should address the question selected and provide evidence that the research task has been planned and carried out efficiently and that investigation and judgement have been employed.

The Extended Response and the plan will be accompanied by a teacher/lecturer checklist verifying that the planning and researching process was carried out by the candidate.

The Extended Response will be externally marked. The response will be assessed in relation to the course criteria; however, it is not expected that source handling skills should be assessed in this response.

Question Paper (1 hour 45 minutes)

This paper will consist of four parts as follows: Part 1 - Short Essay; Part 2 - source-based questions on one of the Contexts in the Scottish and British Historical Study; Part 3 - source based questions on one of the Contexts in the European and World Historical Study; Part 4: source-based questions on a further context from either Scottish and British or European and World Historical Study. Marks will range from 4-8 per question throughout.

The paper will be worth 50 marks.

GRADE DESCRIPTIONS

Success in the course at grade C, B or A will be determined by the sum of performance across all three parts of the question paper and the Extended Response. The grade descriptions for the external assessment are laid out below.

The descriptions require that the knowledge and understanding, skills and ability to use concepts which have been acquired over the units be retained and demonstrated over the duration of the written examination and demonstrated in the answering of unseen questions.

The characteristics of candidates' performance at grade C and at grade A are described below. It should be remembered that almost all candidates' work will show evidence of attainment of different criteria at different levels. Some will exhibit some, though not all, of the features listed in any one category; others will be stronger in one area than another. Each answer will therefore be considered as a whole.

COURSE History (Intermediate 2)

The grade descriptions below should be considered in relation to specific questions asked.

At C

Information which demonstrates understanding of the topic and its themes is used, with commentary, to explain historical developments and events and support conclusions on historical questions.

Sources are evaluated taking account of their origin or purpose, content and context.

At A

Explanations and commentary are accurate and detailed and they are effectively organised in support of conclusions.

Evaluations are accurate, detailed and relevant, and take full account of the origin or purpose, content and context of the sources.

Relationship of course to component units

The course consists of three component units plus an additional forty hours' study. An external assessment, including the Extended Response, tests the candidates' knowledge and understanding of the content covered in all three units and their ability to demonstrate and integrate the historical skills acquired throughout the course.

The criteria for a grade C in this course closely reflect the level of competence required for success in its constituent units. However, the external assessment of the course makes specific additional demands on the candidates.

The external assessment grade descriptions require that candidates demonstrate the ability to integrate the competences demonstrated in the component units of the course. The knowledge and understanding, skills and ability to use concepts which have been acquired over the units must be:

- retained and demonstrated over time
- demonstrated in the answering of unseen questions
- integrated in the Extended Response

APPROACHES TO LEARNING AND TEACHING

Learning experiences

The following learning experiences are essential to the course. Candidates should:

- interpret and evaluate historical source material
- record systematically information derived from a variety of sources, such as books, notes, lectures, audio-visual materials
- make use of relevant historical terms and concepts
- take part in formal and informal discussion and debate based on and informed by historical evidence and knowledge in order to develop the ability to think independently and make informed judgements
- develop the skills of producing written (or oral) responses for a variety of purposes

COURSE            History (Intermediate 2)

It is important that the candidates should be familiar with the historical themes that run through the chosen topic and not simply learn about a series of discrete historical issues.

Teaching programme

The three units may be taught in any order or in an integrated manner. The learning experiences in all three units reinforce each other: knowledge and understanding of the content and of historical themes and general concepts will be developed along with increased competence in the skills listed in the outcomes. The order in which units or their parts are studied will depend on their specific content. The course, and each unit, may be taught chronologically or thematically.

The outcomes for all three units are identical. Where a candidate has failed to achieve the outcomes of the first unit studied, it may be worthwhile for him/her to attempt to achieve them once the second unit has been studied, as by then he/she will have had an opportunity to develop further the required skills. Time should in any case be allowed for remediation and resitting of internal assessments where outcomes have not been achieved.

The additional 40 hours allowed for the course may be used at the discretion of the teacher/lecturer to consolidate and vary the candidates' learning experiences, including those listed above. Time may be used near the start of the course for introduction to concepts, methods and skills, at various points throughout for consolidation and remediation or for preparation for internal assessment, and near the end of the course, for integration, revision and preparation for external assessment.

Teaching methodology

The methodology used by teachers/lecturers will be built on existing good practice. Teacher/lecturer exposition and note-taking from textbooks, information sheets and a wide variety of other secondary sources are likely to form the basis of class work in units. Class and group discussion may reinforce this. Extension work, access to primary sources and resource-based learning should be made available to individuals and groups as appropriate.

Preparation for external assessment

The pieces of work which demonstrate competence in the outcomes for each unit should also demonstrate a level of achievement equivalent to a grade C in the course. The same pieces of work may be assessed against the grade descriptions for the relevant part of the external course assessment to ascertain whether an A or a B can be recorded as a course estimate or as evidence in the case of an appeal.

Additional pieces of work can be used for continuous assessment and as practice for external assessment. These could be grouped and/or timed to develop examination skills. Towards the end of the course, it may be useful to allow candidates to revisit the content covered at the beginning of the year, using skills developed through experience and maturation as the year's work has progressed.

Some time from the additional 40 hours should also be allowed to prepare for the Extended Response, through the gathering of information and planning of the structure of the response. Candidates will require some guidance on the choice of question, which should relate to the course and allow candidates the opportunity to demonstrate attainment in Outcomes 1 and 2 of the units studied.

COURSE History (Intermediate 2)

Advice may also be given on the organisation of revision for the external assessment. Knowledge and understanding needs to be effectively retained and skills practised with unfamiliar sources or questions.

SPECIAL NEEDS

This course specification is intended to ensure that there are no artificial barriers to learning or assessment. Special needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments or considering alternative outcomes for units. For information on these, please refer to the SQA document Guidance on Special Assessment Arrangements (SQA, 2001).

NOTE ON RANGE FOR THIS UNIT

There are no specific requirements as to the range of contexts within which the outcomes and performance criteria should be demonstrated. Differentiation between Intermediate 1 and Intermediate 2 is achieved through the amount and level of recall. For further guidance on the range of content to be covered, see the support notes. The level of difficulty of a unit is defined not just by the performance criteria but by their application in the context of a particular area of content and a particular set of themes.

UNIT Historical Study - Scottish and British (Intermediate 2)

Evidence requirements

Evidence of attainment for the above outcomes can be provided through responses to short-answer questions based on recall and sources. This evidence must satisfy all of the above outcomes in relation to the chosen historical context. Within each outcome, the evidence must demonstrate or imply satisfaction of all of the performance criteria.

It is also possible to assess Outcomes 1 and 2 by means of an extended piece of writing or oral response. Evidence of competence in Outcome 3 would also be required. This could be demonstrated by short-answer questions based on sources. This approach would help prepare the candidate for the extended response in the external examination as well as providing a bridge to essay writing skills at Higher.

The candidate's work must be completed under supervision, without collaboration, the assistance of notes or teacher/lecturer advice.

The evidence should relate to the context chosen for study in this unit. Candidates should select one context from the following list:

- 1 Murder in the Cathedral: Crown, Church and People 1154 - 73.
- 2 Wallace, Bruce and the Wars of Independence 1286 - 1328
- 3 Mary Queen of Scots and the Scottish Reformation 1540s - 87
- 4 The Coming of the Civil War 1603 - 42
- 5 'Ane End of Ane Auld Sang': Scotland and the Treaty of Union 1690s - 1715
- 6 Immigrants and Exiles: Scotland 1830s - 1930s

Details of this content may be found in the support notes. The course descriptor also lays out the relationship between this unit and the content of the rest of the Intermediate 2 History course.

Evidence provided will sample the chosen content area. Outcomes and performance criteria must be fulfilled with reference to this sample.

National Unit Specification: support notes

UNIT Historical Study - Scottish and British (Intermediate 2)

This part of the unit specification is offered as guidance. The support notes are not mandatory.

While the time allocated to this unit is at the discretion of the centre, the notional design length is 40 hours.

GUIDANCE ON CONTENT AND CONTEXT FOR THIS UNIT

The choice of content for each topic within this unit is based upon a number of historical themes. These are specific to the topic studied, for example, belief, community, conflict, power. These themes assist teachers in selecting content and in assessment. Understanding of these themes may be demonstrated without explicit reference to them. Candidates will be required to study one of the following specified contexts. Through these contexts, important themes of Scottish and British History may be studied across the breadth of historical periods, Medieval, Early Modern and Later Modern. Each context constitutes an important area of historical study in its own right as well as providing progression to further study at Higher level.

GUIDANCE ON TEACHING AND LEARNING FOR THIS UNIT

While undertaking this unit, candidates should be provided with the opportunity to:

- interpret and evaluate historical source material
- record systematically information from a variety of sources, such as books, notes, lectures, audio-visual materials
- make use of relevant historical terms and concepts
- take part in formal and informal discussion and debate based on and informed by historical evidence and knowledge in order to develop the ability to think independently and make informed judgements
- develop the skills of written or oral responses for a variety of purposes.

It is important that the candidates should be familiar with the historical themes that run through the chosen topic and not simply learn about a series of discrete historical issues.

Teaching methodology

The methodology used by teachers/lecturers will be built on existing good practice. The knowledge and understanding of the themes and content delivered in this unit should be linked to the development of skills of interpretation and analysis to provide insight and encourage respect for available evidence.

UNIT            Historical Study - Scottish and British (Intermediate 2)

Teacher/lecturer exposition will provide a basis for class work in this unit. Opportunities should be provided to develop candidates' abilities of note-taking and note-making. Time should be allowed for group and class discussion. A variety of resources should be used including textbooks, information sheets and a range of appropriate primary sources. Materials and strategies should be designed to provide for the whole ability range - core/extension, groupwork, individual work. Advice from the Learning Support staff should be drawn upon in designing appropriately differentiated course materials.

GUIDANCE ON APPROACHES TO ASSESSMENT FOR THIS UNIT

The National Assessment Bank will provide exemplar assessment instruments and guidance on implementation. This does not preclude teachers/lecturers from devising their own assessment tasks.

Assessment can be administered at appropriate points throughout the unit or at the end of the unit. Candidates will be required to demonstrate satisfactory attainment of all the learning outcomes and performance criteria. Assessment tasks could be used which relate primarily to each outcome. More extended tasks could be used which would allow candidates to demonstrate competence in more than one learning outcome and associated performance criteria. It would be possible to use similar instruments of assessment to those used in the external assessment.

The instrument of assessment for this unit can be in the form of short answers based on recall and presented sources of information.

It would also be possible to test learning outcomes 1 and 2 by means of an extended piece of writing or oral response. Evidence of competence in learning outcome 3 would also be required. This could be demonstrated by short answers based on sources. This approach would help prepare the candidate for the Extended Response in the external assessment as well as providing practice in the skills required at Higher.

This assessment should be administered under supervision, without collaboration or the assistance of notes or teacher/lecturer advice.

Where a candidate has failed to achieve one or more of the components, a reassessment may be undertaken after appropriate remediation. It is only necessary to reassess competence in the outcomes which the candidate has failed to achieve. In this unit, this may involve revisiting some or all of the candidate's responses under similar conditions to the first attempt. If the candidate remains unsuccessful in all or part of the unit, a different task should be used for a subsequent reassessment.

Where accessible tasks can be set which will allow candidates to demonstrate competence beyond the minimum standard required, evidence gathered for internal unit assessment may also be used for grade prediction and for appeals for external course assessment. (For details of the grade descriptions for the external assessment, please refer to the course specification.)

UNIT      Historical Study - Scottish and British (Intermediate 2)

Qualifications to which this unit contributes

This unit is one of three mandatory units which together make up the course in Intermediate 2 History. The other two units are Historical Study - European and World (Int 2) and Historical Study - Options (Int 2). Both have the same outcomes as this unit. In order to achieve certification in this course, candidates have to attain the outcomes for all three units which are internally assessed and to attain at least a C in the external assessment.

This unit could also be undertaken as a component of a Scottish Group Award.

SPECIAL NEEDS

This unit specification is intended to ensure that there are no artificial barriers to learning or assessment. Special needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments or considering alternative outcomes for units. For information on these, please refer to the SQA document Guidance on Special Assessment Arrangements (SQA, 2001).

This approach would help prepare the candidate for the Extended Response in the external examination as well as providing a bridge to essay writing skills at Higher.

The candidate's work must be completed under supervision, without collaboration, the assistance of notes or teacher/lecturer advice.

The evidence should relate to the context chosen for study in this unit. Candidates should select one context from the following list:

GUIDANCE ON TEACHING AND LEARNING APPROACHES FOR THIS UNIT

While undertaking this unit candidates should be provided with the opportunity to:

- interpret and evaluate historical source material
- record systematically information from a variety of sources, such as books, notes, lectures, audio-visual materials
- make use of relevant historical terms and concepts

UNIT            Historical Study - European and World (Intermediate 2)

- take part in formal and informal discussion and debate based on and informed by historical evidence and knowledge in order to develop the ability to think independently and make informed judgements
- develop the skills of producing written or oral responses for a variety of purposes

It is important that candidates should be familiar with the historical themes that run through the chosen topic and not simply learn about a series of discrete historical issues.

Teaching methodology

The methodology used by teachers/lecturers will be built on existing good practice. The knowledge and understanding of the themes and content delivered in this unit should be linked to the development of skills of interpretation and analysis to provide insight and encourage respect for available evidence.

Teacher/lecturer exposition will provide a basis for class work in this unit. Opportunities should be provided to develop candidates' abilities of note-taking and note-making. Time should be allowed for class and group discussions. A variety of resources should be used including textbooks, information sheets and a range of appropriate primary sources. Materials and strategies should be designed to provide for the whole ability range - core/extension, groupwork, individual work. Advice from the Learning Support staff should be drawn upon in designing appropriately differentiated course materials.

GUIDANCE ON APPROACHES TO ASSESSMENT FOR THIS UNIT

The National Assessment Bank will provide exemplar assessment instruments and guidance on implementation. This does not preclude teachers/lecturers from devising their own assessment tasks.

Assessment can be administered at appropriate points throughout the unit or at the end of the unit. Candidates will be required to demonstrate satisfactory attainment of all the learning outcomes and performance criteria. Assessment tasks could be used which relate primarily to each outcome. More extended tasks could be used which would allow candidates to demonstrate competence in more than one learning outcome and associated performance criteria. It would be possible to use similar instruments of assessment to those used in the external assessment.

The instrument of assessment for this unit can be in the form of short answers based on recall and presented sources of information.

It would also be possible to test learning outcomes 1 and 2 by means of an extended piece of writing or oral response. Evidence of competence in learning outcome 3 would also be required. This could be demonstrated by short answers based on sources. This approach would help prepare the candidate for the Extended Response in the external assessment as well as providing practice in the skills required at Higher.

This assessment should be administered under supervision, without collaboration or the assistance of notes or teacher/lecturer advice.

UNIT      Historical Study - European and World (Intermediate 2)

Where a candidate has failed to achieve one or more of the components, a reassessment may be undertaken after appropriate remediation. It is only necessary to reassess competence in the outcomes which the candidate has failed to achieve. In this unit this may involve revisiting some or all of the candidate's responses under similar conditions to the first attempt. If the candidate remains unsuccessful in all or part of the unit, a different task should be used for a subsequent reassessment.

Where accessible tasks can be set which will allow candidates to demonstrate competence beyond the minimum standard required, evidence gathered for internal unit assessment may also be used for grade prediction and for appeals for external course assessment. (For details of the grade descriptions for the external assessment, please refer to the course specification.)

Qualifications to which this unit contributes

This unit is one of three mandatory units which together make up the course in Intermediate 2 History. The other two units are Historical Study - Scottish and British (Int 2) and Historical Study - Options (Int 2). Both have the same outcomes as this unit. In order to achieve certification in this course, candidates have to attain the outcomes for all three units which are internally assessed and to attain at least a C in the external assessment.

This unit could also be undertaken as a component of a Scottish Group Award.

SPECIAL NEEDS

This unit specification is intended to ensure that there are no artificial barriers to learning or assessment. Special needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments or considering alternative outcomes for units. For information on these, please refer to the SQA document Guidance on Special Assessment Arrangements (SQA, 2001).

GUIDANCE ON TEACHING AND LEARNING APPROACHES FOR THIS UNIT

While undertaking this unit candidates should be provided with the opportunity to:

- interpret and evaluate historical source material
- record systematically information from a variety of sources, such as books, notes, lectures, audio-visual materials
- make use of relevant historical terms and concepts

UNIT            Historical Study - Options (Intermediate 2)

- take part in formal and informal discussion and debate based on and informed by historical evidence and knowledge in order to develop the ability to think independently and make informed judgements
- develop the skills of written or equivalent responses for a variety of purposes.

It is important that the candidates should be familiar with the historical themes that run through the chosen topic and not simply learn about a series of discrete historical issues.

Teaching methodology

The methodology used by teachers/lecturers will be built on existing good practice. The knowledge and understanding of the themes and content delivered in this unit should be linked to the development of skills of interpretation and analysis to provide insight and encourage respect for available evidence.

Teacher/lecturer exposition will provide a basis for class work in this unit. Opportunities should be provided to develop candidates' abilities of note-taking and note-making. Time should be allowed for group and whole-class discussion. A variety of resources should be used including textbooks, information sheets and a range of appropriate primary sources. Materials and strategies should be designed to provide for the whole ability range - core/extension, groupwork, individual work. Advice from the Learning Support staff should be drawn upon in designing appropriately differentiated course materials.

GUIDANCE ON APPROACHES TO ASSESSMENT FOR THIS UNIT

The National Assessment Bank will provide exemplar assessment instruments and guidance on implementation. This does not preclude teachers/lecturers from devising their own assessment tasks.

Assessment can be administered at appropriate points during the unit or at the end of the unit. Candidates will be required to demonstrate satisfactory attainment of all the learning outcomes and performance criteria. Assessment tasks could be used which relate primarily to each outcome. More extended tasks could be used which would allow candidates to demonstrate competence in more than one learning outcome and associated performance criteria. It would be possible to use similar instruments of assessment to those used in the external assessment. The instrument of assessment for this unit can be in the form of short answers based on recall and presented sources of information.

It is also possible to test Outcomes 1 and 2 by means of an extended piece of writing or oral response. Evidence of competence in Outcome 3 would also be required. This could be demonstrated by short answers based on sources. This approach would help prepare the candidate for the Extended Response in the external assessment as well as providing practice in the skills required at Higher.

This assessment should be administered under supervision, without collaboration or the assistance of notes or teacher/lecturer advice.

UNIT            Historical Study - Options (Intermediate 2)

Where a candidate has failed to achieve one or more of the components, a reassessment may be undertaken after appropriate remediation. It is only necessary to reassess competence in the outcomes which the candidate has failed to achieve. In this unit this may involve revisiting some or all of the candidate's responses under similar conditions to the first attempt. If the candidate remains unsuccessful in all or part of the unit, a different task should be used for a subsequent reassessment.

Where accessible tasks can be set which will allow candidates to demonstrate competence beyond the minimum standard required, evidence gathered for internal unit assessment may also be used for grade prediction and for appeals for external course assessment. (For details of the grade descriptions for the external assessment, please refer to the course specification.)

Qualifications to which this unit contributes

This unit is one of three mandatory units which together make up the course in Intermediate 2 History. The other two units are Historical Study - Scottish and British (Int 2) and Historical Study - European and World (Int 2). Both have the same outcomes as this unit. In order to achieve certification in this course, candidates have to attain the outcomes for all three units which are internally assessed and to attain at least a C in the external assessment.

This unit could also be undertaken as a component of a Scottish Group Award.

SPECIAL NEEDS

This unit specification is intended to ensure that there are no artificial barriers to learning or assessment. Special needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments or considering alternative outcomes for units. For information on these, please refer to the SQA document Guidance on Special Assessment Arrangements (SQA, 2001).
