Mobile technologies—work/life balance

Volkswagen has agreed to stop its Blackberry servers sending emails to some of its employees when they are off-shift as staff were complaining that their work and home lives were becoming blurred.

The servers stop routing emails 30 minutes after the end of employees' shifts, and then start again 30 minutes before they return to work.

The staff can still use their devices to make calls and the rule does not apply to senior management.

Some say it is bad for the employee to be online 24-7 as it has a poor impact on their well-being.

The Trades Union Congress agrees "The issue of employees using Blackberrys, and other devices out of working time is a growing one that needs to be addressed as it can be a source of stress".
