

Personal Development

Access 3

Tutor feedback:

Benefits to students	The programme integrates with aspects of the young people's 24/7 care and education (residential school)
Has the Personal Development programme been well received by students?	The course is embedded across many existing courses in school with new experiences and outcomes introduced
Advice for centres	Audit your Personal Development, Enterprise and Health and Wellbeing curricula beforehand; Consider building on work with external partners, with teaching staff taking overall responsibility for the NABS; New technologies can be used to capture and reflect on evidence required - for example: phone applications; blogs and voice memos

Benefits to students	It is a flexible course that the teacher can tailor to the interests of students
Has the Personal Development programme been well received by	Yes. The students are enjoying the practical aspects of the course students?

Advice for centres	Centres that are considering delivering the course probably need to go through the written part carefully in order to create materials to support student understanding. It is also important to involve the students in choosing the projects as then they have more ownership

Intermediate 1

Tutor feedback:

PD Level	Intermediate 1
Benefits to students	They learn to interact with other students who they would not normally choose to work with which helps with social and interpersonal skills Work as a team Builds confidence Successful learners Learn life skills for the future Different way of learning through practical skills, learning about themselves and others
Has the Personal Development programme been well received by students?	Students have a large input into their learning and have readily engaged with the planning of activities available to them
Advice for centres	Engage students in the planning of their work to find out what they wish to get out of the experience Exchange ideas from other schools who are also involved with the course and going to network meetings to share ideas to evaluate the course Ensure that students are learning at the correct pace

	The requirements for SQA are easier for students to follow and they have managed to complete units with little support from advisors. The units are very user friendly.

Higher

Tutor feedback:

Benefits to students	Development of a wide range of skills and abilities, particularly self-evaluation Independent learning. Good preparation for Further and Higher Education Individual and group work activities Participating in relevant project work. Some of this involves positively adapting other aspects of their work that they are already involved with, for example, UCAS application, Duke of Edinburgh and Buddying Development of self confidence and self awareness
Has the Personal Development programme been well received by students?	Very well received
Advice for centres	I would recommend the programme The Higher is a pleasure to teach with well motivated sixth year students, some of whom are not the most able academically

Candidate feedback:

Activities that the candidate has been involved with	Working with an HIV/AIDS project with students across school to raise awareness and how we can help to combat the disease Presentation carried out in all classes to raise awareness and ribbons sold to benefit a national organisation that helps people with HIV and AIDS
What the candidate has gained from undertaking the PD course	I have learned how to identify my skills and weaknesses and how I can use my skills and develop others The tasks and targets are appropriate for this unit at this level because they are preparing us for when we leave school. The targets are allowing us to identify what our key weaknesses are and to develop our skills further In my work placement, the tasks are fairly complex and suited to this level of study
Did the candidate enjoy the course?	I thoroughly enjoyed the Personal Development course
Recommend the course to others?	I would recommend the course to others. The course has helped in a good way by helping develop skills which can be used in later life, for example, finding out about jobs. It focuses on how you can become

	better by developing your weaknesses and working to your strengths - something few people understand how to do and they often give up because of this
