

Creative Competition 2012

Anti-Racism

Anti-Sectarianism

The Person
They say it's no
They say it's
They say there's
But do the
... be

Show Racism the Red Card, the UK's premier anti-racism charity, which uses professional footballers as anti-racism role models, has joined forces with the Scottish Qualifications Authority (SQA) to support the 2012 Creative Competition.

We know that there is brilliant creative talent in Scotland's schools and colleges, and we want to use that talent to get across the message that racism and sectarianism have no place in an inclusive and tolerant Scotland.

The 2012 Competition is supported by:

- » Educational Institute of Scotland
- » Education Scotland
- » The Scottish Government
- » Scottish Football Association
- » Scottish Football League
- » Scottish Premier League

All you have to do to enter is develop a piece of creative work that gets across loud and clear our message that racism and sectarianism are not welcome in Scotland!

- It could be
- » artwork
 - » poetry
 - » short story
 - » creative writing
 - » music
 - » dance or drama performance
 - » research project
 - » multimedia presentation

In fact it could be anything that is creative, inspirational and stimulated by the anti-racism and anti-sectarianism message. Entries are welcome from individuals and class groups.

Finalists will be invited to a star-studded awards ceremony at Scotland's National Stadium, Hampden Park, attended by the elite of Scottish football, to receive public acclaim for their work and receive superb prizes.

Detailed information for teachers and lecturers, full competition rules and application forms are on our website www.sqa.org.uk/redcard. The closing date for entries is 27 January 2012.

This is a great opportunity to work with Show Racism the Red Card and SQA to show we are serious about making Scotland a fair and inclusive society – we hope you will be part of it.

Previous winner: FE Colleges

Neil Todd, Neil Redmond and other learners from HMP Inverness
Motherwell College

This piece of work is an installation made up of prison shirts and jeans with anti-racist stories and comments written on them, hanging on a washing line. The artists are 'airing' their views on anti-racism. The result is a striking visual representation of these views which the artists hope will break down the stereotypes about offenders and their attitudes to race.

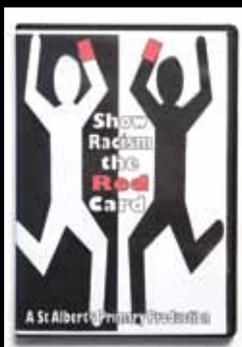

Previous winner: Special Schools

Jacinta McLean Black
Good Shepherd Secure Unit

Jacinta's poem is called 'The Person I am'. It is written from the point of view of a child who suffers racist taunts. Jacinta has recognised that there are some people who think racism no longer exists. This poem aims to highlight that racism is still an issue which must be addressed.

Previous winner: Primary 5 - 7

Safah Aslam, Gulzar Kaleem, Noor Ghafour, Maryam Wasim and Abdul Hannan Khan
St Albert's Primary School

The winners from St Albert's Primary School created an anti-racism advert which aims to promote anti-racist attitudes to people across Scotland. They created fictitious characters and scenarios to portray the various forms that racism can take and used the process of video making to express their thoughts and feelings on anti-racism.
