He's really enjoying it, he's been building fences, he's done a dry stone wall, he's been doing some plumbing and he's been planting things in a garden as well. All skills and things that he's never done before, he's loving it. I feel that it's really good for his self esteem and he's got a lot of confidence in himself and he really looks forward on a Wednesday to going on a Thursday. I think it's a great opportunity, because I think to get life skills such as they're getting taught is really good for them.
