Very good	The candidate will demonstrate an ability to give full responses which are presented with a good degree of clarity, expression and accuracy. The purpose of a basic conversation is naturally achieved with responses to most questions being appropriate, spontaneous and at a normal pace. The candidate requires minimum time to respond, is aware of and demonstrates a range of vocabulary. There is confidence and accuracy both in rehearsed and unrehearsed situations.	50 – 60
Good	The candidate will demonstrate an ability to give responses which are presented with quite a good degree of clarity, expression and accuracy. The purpose of a basic conversation is achieved with responses to most questions being fairly appropriate, spontaneous and at a normal pace. The candidate responds to questions in a reasonable amount of time, is aware of and demonstrates a range of vocabulary. Hesitation and inaccuracy in grammar and pronunciation is minimal. There is reasonable confidence and accuracy both in rehearsed and unrehearsed situations.	40 – 49
Satisfactory	The candidate will demonstrate an ability to give responses which are presented with a reasonable degree of clarity, expression and accuracy. The purpose of a basic conversation is fulfilled with the pace of a conversation being mainly at a normal speed. Syntax is fairly accurate with mostly appropriate responses to questions showing evidence of a range of vocabulary. The candidate may require time to respond to a question but can reply without major assistance. The speaker may need to intervene on occasion to sustain communication. Hesitation and inaccuracy in grammar and pronunciation do not prevent overall comprehension. There may be limited confidence and flexibility both in rehearsed and unrehearsed situations.	30 – 39
Unsatisfactory	The main purpose of a straightforward conversation is not readily fulfilled. Difficulty in achieving communication because of limited range of vocabulary and structures and/or serious inaccuracies in language.
