RATIONALE

Each course offers broad-based learning experiences combining linguistic, cultural and heritage awareness.

A knowledge of Latin or Classical Greek, both of which are highly inflected languages, accelerates the learning of other languages, particularly the Romance languages and modern Greek, by providing a structural framework for language acquisition in general.

Knowledge of the words used in the languages enhances the knowledge of English vocabulary and awareness of the structure of English, while also contributing to the understanding of scientific and technological vocabulary.

The art of translation develops linguistic problem-solving by promoting precision and clarity of thought and expression, along with such valuable skills as close reading, recall, review and evaluation, analysis, synthesis, and the ability to predict and make inferences. Development of these skills will help to prepare candidates for the world of work.

The study of the literature affords candidates the opportunity to read some of the world's greatest literature in the original, while its interpretation will foster a critical attitude to reading. This develops the core skill of written communication.

Through the reading of texts, whether for interpretation or translation, a more detailed acquaintance with the society within which they were produced will be gained. Such study provides candidates with opportunities to further their personal and social development through positive attitudes towards other peoples and societies.

Moreover, in a society that owes its democratic ideals to the Greeks and its orientation towards Europe and the wider community to the Romans, a study of those peoples is especially valuable for understanding rights and responsibilities and community and global relationships. Given, too, the importance of the Mediterranean area for tourism, and the popular interest in history and archaeology seen in the media, candidates may also use their interest in the language in lifelong education and leisure.

The aims therefore of Intermediate 2 Latin course are:

- 1 to develop the candidate's competence in Latin language;
- 2 to increase understanding and appreciation of Latin literature;
- 3 to help candidates understand and gain an insight into the Roman world.

The aims of Intermediate 2 Classical Greek course are:

- 1 to develop the candidate's competence in Classical Greek language;
- 2 to increase understanding and appreciation of Classical Greek literature;
- 3 to help candidates understand and gain an insight into the Greek world.

It should be noted that the third aim is taught in an integrated way and is not formally assessed. It permeates the entire course.

COURSE CONTENT

Summary

For those who begin Latin or Classical Greek at this level, the units will largely be sequential, with the language work underpinning translation likely to be done before any interpretation may be attempted. Those who are continuing their studies at this level will also need much of the revision implicit in these courses. They can, however, be doing more reading while the beginners cover the earliest stages. Aim 3, to help candidates understand and gain an insight into the ancient world, permeates all units and is not assessed.

Translation

Study of accidence, syntax and case usage, and practice in translation of unprepared prose passages.

Interpretation

Study of verse and prose texts, all of which will be prescribed, to be read partly in the original language and partly in English. Prescriptions for the first year of the examination, and until further notice, will be as follows:

Latin

Cicero, In Verrem IV, 84 (line 5) - 87 (line 11) and 94-95 (in Latin); 109 (line 4) - 112 (line 5) (in English).

Virgil, Aeneid VI, lines 268-336 and 440-476 (in Latin); Aeneid IV, lines 304-387, 595-629, 650-666, 693-705 (in English).

Classical Greek

Thucydides, Book II, 3-5 (in Greek); 1-2, 47-52 (in English).

Homer, Odyssey IX*, lines 307-400 (in Greek); lines 401-505 (in English).

Copies of a booklet of plain text of the complete prescription are available from SQA to presenting centres for use in class. The text provided in the examination will be that issued by SQA. For study of the prescribed text in class, any suitable editions may be used.

* A vocabulary for this text is available from SQA on request.

The skills of Interpretation

The candidate should be able to:

- extract information from a text
- explain content
- identify the main idea(s) or theme(s) of a text
- draw inferences about intended effect from choice of words
- explain the author's technique
- make a statement of personal response
- justify statement of personal response

Integration of skills

Candidates may take one or more of the component units on a free-standing basis. In studying an Interpretation unit, the candidate also uses translation skills; in undertaking a Translation unit, the candidate benefits from understanding of context or author's style - the very skills that Interpretation imparts.

Where candidates are studying a course as a whole, this integration of skills is much more significant. As candidates may be studying these units concurrently, each course should provide a sustained and progressive learning experience, offering to candidates:

- reinforcement of teaching points where necessary, some of which cover areas from different units and so aid integration
- extra reading to improve translation skills but also to develop interpretative skills
- time for more structured development of contextual knowledge, to assist candidates in tackling unseen translation
- individual remediation time in addition to that within the 40-hour units

ASSESSMENT

To gain the award of the course, the candidate must pass all the component units of the course as well as the external assessment. External assessment will provide the basis for grading attainment in the course award.

| COURSE | Latin (Intermediate 2) Classical Greek (Intermediate 2) |

When units are taken as component parts of a course, candidates will have the opportunity to achieve at levels beyond that required to attain each of the unit outcomes. This attainment may, where appropriate, be recorded and used to contribute towards course estimates, and to provide evidence for appeals. Additional details are provided, where appropriate, with the exemplar assessment materials.

DETAILS OF THE INSTRUMENTS FOR EXTERNAL ASSESSMENT

The external assessment for Intermediate 2 Latin and Classical Greek will take the form of examination question papers.

External assessment will be based on two papers, each of one hour's duration: Interpretation and Translation. Candidates will be required to attempt both papers. 30 marks will be allocated to each paper.

Interpretation

The skills of Interpretation to be assessed will be those set out in the section on Course Content. Interpretation will be assessed by questions on prescribed literature (prose and verse) requiring short answers (very brief: a few words) and restricted response (a few lines to a paragraph). There may be choices within the questions.

Copies of a booklet of plain text of the complete prescription are available from SQA to presenting centres for use in class. The text provided in the examination will be that issued by SQA. For study of the prescribed text in class, any suitable editions may be used.

Translation

Latin – this paper will consist of a passage of unseen prose, normally narrative, of approximately 120 words. Only one passage will be set. It may be taken from any appropriate prose author, including medieval. The passage will normally be subdivided, with introduction and linking material in English.

Classical Greek – this paper will consist of a passage of unseen prose, normally narrative, of approximately 140-160 words. The passage will normally be subdivided, with introduction and linking material in English.

Candidates will be expected to be familiar with the accidence and syntax in the prescribed lists (see section on Course Content). A full alphabetical word-list specific to the passage will be provided. In addition, assistance will be given with words and phrases likely to cause difficulty.

The marking scheme will be based on the system of essential ideas: further details will be provided in exemplar assessments.

APPROACHES TO LEARNING AND TEACHING

The study of Latin or Classical Greek is to be seen as a tripartite activity for teacher/lecturer and learner alike, since a knowledge of language is needed before literature is appreciated as the author first presented it, while the appreciation of literature greatly assists the understanding of the language with greater sensitivity. Integrated into the study of both language and literary appreciation is the background knowledge of the history and culture of the author's era.

COURSE Latin (Intermediate 2)
Classical Greek (Intermediate 2)

Translation

While beginners are learning to recognise parts of speech and noun and verb endings, the others will be revising their knowledge from Standard Grade. It is envisaged that careful selection by staff of passages suitably constructed and adapted in respect of vocabulary, construction and content will allow candidates to progress. The beginners will probably be working through one of the regular course-books, though sensible abridgement must be made here to meet time and maturity. Flexible learning approaches will be of great use here. If appropriate, oral work may complement written practice and pupils may often benefit from working in groups or pairs. Sometimes there will be an advantage in redoing first versions into improved English renderings.

Interpretation

To gain an aesthetic and critical appreciation of an author's work, candidates will study the text in much greater depth, for here it is the skills of interpretation that are being applied. The units in Interpretation, while contributing to improvement in language skills, will be studied primarily from a literary standpoint. The literature studied includes the work of authors such as Virgil and Homer.

SPECIAL NEEDS

This course specification is intended to ensure that there are no artificial barriers to learning or assessment. Special needs of individual candidates should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment instruments or considering alternative outcomes for units.
