You read an article about reducing food waste.

Aquí no se tira nada

De una comida pueden sacarse cinco. La cocina tradicional ha vuelto a muchos hogares españoles por la falta de recursos económicos y por el deseo de ser más creativos con los ingredientes. Según los resultados de un estudio reciente de la Confederación Española de Consumidores, no es sorprendente descubrir que el 86% de los alimentos que se tiran son
5 sobras de otras comidas. Sin embargo otros estudios muestran que las costumbres de los consumidores se han modificado: los consumidores han reducido la cantidad de alimentos que va a la basura y reutilizan con más frecuencia productos como el aceite.

Planear con antelación

La planificación antes de ir al súper es una de las bases para ahorrar en la cesta de la
10 compra. En España se desperdician alrededor de 3 millones de toneladas de alimentos cada año. Un hogar medio tira mucha comida cada año, y casi la mitad de estos alimentos tirados podría haberse consumido si la gente hubiera comprado solo lo necesario.

Jaime Pérez vive con su mujer y sus dos niños en Tarragona. Como muchas familias españolas, gastaban cada vez más en el supermercado. Jaime nos cuenta: “Mi mujer y yo decidimos seguir unas reglas para intentar reducir la cantidad de comida que tiramos mensualmente y también para ahorrar algo de dinero para los gastos de los niños.” Jaime explica las reglas que siguen sin dificultades. En familia, planifican semanalmente el menú. Además, tienen en cuenta quién va a estar en casa cada tarde y solo cocinan lo suficiente para ellos. Finalmente, congelan la comida sobrante para usarla en los días siguientes. “Se 20 nota la diferencia tanto en el bolsillo como en la basura” dice Jaime.

Otra solución que podría reducir el desperdicio es compartir una comida casera alrededor de la mesa. Por desgracia, debido al ritmo de trabajo, reuniones y demás compromisos diarios, comer en casa con la familia o los amigos se limita normalmente a los fines de semana. Para los demás días, existe la opción de salir a cenar a un restaurante cercano.

25 Talleres de cocina

Por toda España, hay talleres que enseñan a cocinar, como el del Centro de Cocina Internacional en Madrid. El objetivo de las personas que asisten es aprender a cocinar con creatividad. Al último taller que realizaron, asistieron doce personas que cocinaron un plato internacional diferente para cada día de la semana. Cada persona creó una serie 30 de recetas, asegurándose de que la alimentación fuese sana, equilibrada y con pocas calorías.

Antonio Madroño, uno de los asistentes al taller explica: “Lo más útil que he aprendido es que se debería seguir un menú para la semana entera y que se puede ser creativo utilizando las sobras como se hacía antes. Para la mayoría de los hogares españoles, hoy en día el 35 desafío es combinar las tradiciones culinarias con las demandas de la vida moderna”.

La aplicación Supercomida

La tecnología también puede ayudar a hacer una compra más económica. Hay una aplicación llamada Supercomida que te permite comparar precios en los supermercados más cercanos y conseguir un ahorro de hasta el 40%: simplemente hay que escanear el código de barras del
40 producto. Otra ventaja de Supercomida es que, si pones los ingredientes que te quedan en la nevera, la aplicación sugiere una gama de posibles platos.

Es evidente que en España se está haciendo un gran esfuerzo para reducir la cantidad de comida que se tira: sin duda, esto tendrá beneficios económicos y sociales. Como dice Jaime Pérez, “la basura en nuestra casa está más vacía y tenemos el bolsillo más lleno”.
