Coursework and/ or Question Paper revisions

Following a detailed review, which included a mapping exercise of unit assessment and course assessment, the decision is to retain the current course assessment with no additions or extensions. The mapping exercise demonstrated that the course assessment (four components) comprehensively assesses all of the skills, knowledge and understanding of the course. There will be no fundamental gaps as a result of the removal of units.

Equality & inclusion issues

No changes have been made to the aims, rationale or content of the course. There will be a minor change to the word count for the dissertation. This means that the original equality review carried out and attached remains valid and fit for purpose. It should be noted however, that the Units, which were a feature of the original ERF, have now been removed.

Actions that will mitigate any adverse impact outlined above

Summary of Conclusion and recommendation

For disabled candidates who experience difficulties in accessing the external Examination question paper because of difficulty understanding language, Question Paper Setters are provided with advice and guidance on designing inclusive assessments, including the use of accessible language

The adverse impact of the potential barrier identified by the requirement to work independently at Advanced Higher can be mitigated by allowing the candidate to access the support normally provided, where this does not compromise the integrity of the assessment.
