Just a wee heads up...

It appears that we have an AC member, [REDACTED], who is a member of something called the Scottish Clinical Intervention Group. There was discussion around the Injectables/EduQual submission and [REDACTED], by all accounts, was initially of the opinion that we shouldn't be accrediting such qualifications unless for medical professionals but believing that the SCIG didn't think that there was a need for such quals.....given that we are dealing with medical professionals! (Does that make sense?)

Anyway, I had a chat with [REDACTED] and George and indicated that we believed the EduQual award would be aimed at professionals, which we consider a plus, but said that SCIG's position was not one shared by JCCP who believed that there was an equal need for quals/regulation with such learners.

Upshot is that George is contacting two identified individuals on the group to discuss its position and we may be in apposition to share information on the content of the qualification.

Other than that, [REDACTED] got the go ahead to share the MoU with Brodies. (Although I wonder if this will go on hold until SCIG feedback?)

All very interesting.....

Subject: Conversation with [REDACTED] at JCCP

George, [REDACTED]

As promised, a quick summary of my earlier conversation with [REDACTED]. If you recall, I tried to speak to him prior to the tele-KIT to determine JCCP's position on 'injectable' qualifications for medical professionals. (I'll get back to this later!)

1. Updated [REDACTED] on the MoU that he provided for information. I advised that, generally speaking, we considered it to be a workable document and that it was now with our legal advisors to see if they saw any issues with it. He was delighted with this development and awaits any further feedback. Still very keen to establish a formal working arrangement with SQA Accreditation.
2. I provided an update on what we thought Scot Gov's position is now likely to be following the tele-KIT. Again, the suggestion of govt support for accredited/regulated quals at SCQF

Level 10 and above was welcomed and is in line with JCCP stance. [REDACTED] is very much up to speed on the content of the EDuQual qualification and should it be accredited, will be actively promoting it/them down south as an alternative to the existing IQ qualification. (He is aware that EduQual is actively pursuing Ofqual recognition and has spoken about the application. I assume to offer support and seek a way of speeding things along.)

3. Broader discussion took place regarding the current IQ Injectables qual at Level 7. Although recognised by Ofqual, JCCP consider this to be a 'weak' qualification, based upon the old HEA(?) standard and doesn't have a sufficiently practical/clinical focus in terms of assessment. Said standard is now passed to the JCCP and have been updated to address the weaknesses. They have tried to negotiate with IQ around upgrading the qual but to no avail. (The qual remains live until May 2019). However, JCCP are so unhappy with the stance taken by IQ and concerned about the weakness of the qualification that they have raised the matter with Ofqual. The important thing for us, I guess, is that we hold off accrediting this qualification until it has been 'refreshed' against the revised standard....should IQ bring it forward of course.
4. Now on to the confidential points. [REDACTED] advised that the CPSA website, www.cosmeticstandards.org.uk, will shortly (by the end of the month) contain a competency framework which has been developed from the standard. They are keen that this underpins any qualification development in the area of injectables and complements the standard and supervisory framework which is already present. He stressed that he was sharing this info in a spirit of co-operation, knowing that Karen is working with EduQual on the accred submission. EduQual are unaware of this impending development and [REDACTED] is keen that we do not share the information until it is published. He agreed that it is likely to result in some tweaks/changes to the submission but is also of the opinion that as the EduQual qualification is based on the update standard, it should not result in a major piece of work for [REDACTED] and his team.
5. Second (really) confidential point. Again, provided in the spirit of co-operation but not for sharing on an official level. The Department of Health, having created a Cosmetics Regulation Team (CRT), are now considering a JCCP proposal to debar non-medical staff/individuals from undertaking qualifications at Level 6 and Level 7 in injectables. This was mooted a few years back but although Dept of Health was supportive, Treasury knocked it back as they saw the growth this sector as something of a financial bonus. However, [REDACTED] feels that the public health argument is now gaining sway and this is reflected in the existence of the CRT and the fact that they are willing to revisit this option.
6. Lastly, going back to the original point regarding the need for medical professionals to undertake these qualification, [REDACTED] reiterated that this is very much the JCCP stance. Evidence supported the fact that an assumption that being a medical practitioner confers the necessary skillset to deliver injectable to be flawed. Since we last spoke, he indicated that the GMC has accepted this line of thinking and is giving consideration to 'credentialing' for medical professionals seeking to operate in this area within the next couple of years. Some general blurb on credentialing here <https://www.gmc-uk.org/education/standards-guidance-and-curricula/projects/credentialing>

All in all, it was a useful conversation and reinforced [REDACTED] belief that we have a pretty robust qualification pending through EduQual. Also, that we appear to thinking along the same lines as the JCCP on how to 'manage' this sector. I advised that we would likely seek a meeting with JCCP no later than September.

Hope this helps.

Colleagues

If you recall, back in March ACG asked ■ and I to try and establish some relevant sector regulatory links that might benefit us should EduQual AB submit an AC2 for the proposed Diploma in Injectables.

I had a conversation with ■ at the JCCP and he is keen to establish some kind of working relationship with us, as the Scottish regulator, that mirrors what is in place with Ofqual. He kindly provided a copy of the MoU for consideration.

A quick read of the document would suggest that Clause 11 onward would seem particularly pertinent, with the obvious need to amend references around Ofqual, Education Act, etc.

Do we think something like this could be workable for SQA Accreditation?

Would we need to run this past Brodies at this stage?

As things stand, we've indicated that we would likely seek a meeting in London with ■ around the time of the post-approval development visit to EduQual. However, some thoughts on the appropriateness of this timescale would be appreciated. For example, do colleagues feel we should be exploring options earlier than this given that ■ has now received a very early draft version of the qualification in question?

Cheers

The JCCP has been very involved in these discussions and meets regularly with the relevant Scottish Government team.

As advised in that email the JCCP has a Memorandum of Understanding with the SQA (copy attached).

I meet regularly with colleagues from Ofqual in England to discuss the implications for the standardisation of education and training for cosmetic practitioners which is now the subject of official Government consultation and potential legal enforcement as proposed by both the Edinburgh and Westminster Governments.

Would it be possible to receive a response to my earlier email please and in particular could I please arrange a Teams meeting to discuss the Scottish Government's consultation with you regarding future implications for the regulation of education and training for the cosmetic industry in Scotland?

I look forward to hearing from you.

Hi [Redacted]

Yes, very interesting!

I thought we could accredit any qualification except for degrees. Didn't realise we were going to introduce criteria/put restrictions on the types or subject area of qualifications we could accredit??

These qualifications are aimed a professionals – but medical professionals that are operating out with their specialism! That is the whole point to upskill these professionals in these new technologies/clinical/medical procedures. As far as I am aware the Royal College of Surgeons appears to think there is a need (according to Equal).

Well I hope George is armed with all the facts before he contacts these people.

Equal have sent me their unit specs and credit rating forms and I have provided some feedback. I am expecting the AC2 submission soon.

Oh well here we go again!

Thanks for the heads up.

Hi [REDACTED]

I know it makes me sick to think that this is going to put a major spanner in the works! Especially as you have been in contact with HIS & JCCP and no issues were raised. Then we discover some other group are looking at this – why didn't HIS mention this or did they not know about them either?

We really can't be seen to be making up different rules as we go along! Eduqual are so far down the road with this and if we then tell them that we can't approve – then that could be more of a reputational risk than accrediting the qualification!

I really think you need to be involved in any discussions (we need a balanced view and to put up a good argument for regulating these types of qualifications) – hope you don't mind me suggesting you should be involved.

Hi George,

Please find attached a proposed press release from JCCP – with my tracked changes (mainly reference to our name). I also changed the reference to intelligence (too Machiavellian sounding I think).

Can you review and see if there is anything further that you want to change... and are you able to provide the quote?

Once agreed I'll run it passed [REDACTED] before sharing back with [REDACTED].

Thanks

Good Morning Janet,

As you will know, we have been engaging with the Joint Council for Cosmetic Practitioners (JCCP) with regards to bringing about approval of Eduqual as an SQA Accreditation regulated Awarding Body and accrediting their qualifications Certificate in Clinical Aesthetic Injectable Therapies (SCQF level 11) and Diploma in Clinical Aesthetic Injectable Therapies (SCQF level 11).

As a result we have worked with Brodies and the JCCP; in order to set out an MoU which will allow us to share information about the future of qualifications and regulatory requirements in this sector.

I am pleased to say that JCCP have returned the MoU signed. In order to finalise the agreement would you please be able to sign on behalf of SQA?

Finally, [REDACTED] from JCCP has asked if they are able to do a press release about the MoU once everything is concluded?

Can you let me know if you are happy with them to do this?

Subject: Joint Council for Cosmetic Practitioners (JCCP) - Ofqual MoU

Colleagues

If you recall, back in March ACG asked [REDACTED] and I to try and establish some relevant sector regulatory links that might benefit us should EduQual AB submit an AC2 for the proposed Diploma in Injectables.

I had a conversation with [REDACTED] at the JCCP and he is keen to establish some kind of working relationship with us, as the Scottish regulator, that mirrors what is in place with Ofqual. He kindly provided a copy of the MoU for consideration.

A quick read of the document would suggest that Clause 11 onward would seem particularly pertinent, with the obvious need to amend references around Ofqual, Education Act, etc.

Do we think something like this could be workable for SQA Accreditation?

Would we need to run this past Brodies at this stage?

As things stand, we've indicated that we would likely seek a meeting in London with [REDACTED] around the time of the post-approval development visit to EduQual. However, some thoughts on the appropriateness of this timescale would be appreciated. For example, do colleagues feel we should be exploring options earlier than this given that [REDACTED] has now received a very early draft version of the qualification in question?

Cheers

No definite date as yet. However, ACG set an outline timescale of September for the meeting. EduQual are aware of this and I've spoken to [REDACTED] at JCCP that we may want to have a meeting with them also given the fact that we will be in London.

However, worth noting that [REDACTED] is working on a draft of the 'Injectables' qualification spec and may be of a mind to meet EduQual sooner than September.

Hope that helps.

Hi [REDACTED]

Just a quick update on the MoU.

[REDACTED] and I had a meeting with our legal advisors on Wednesday to give them a little bit of background on the kind of information/data that we might be sharing with JCCP. Broadly speaking, they were happy enough with what we were describing but indicated that they think that the MOU might be 'a bit light' and need to consider something that is tighter from a confidentiality/data protection point of view.

Consequently, they are going to provide us with a re-drafted version so that we can better understand what they feel is necessary. We have advised them that we are already sharing information with yourself and Scottish Govt and this is likely to continue given the nature of ongoing discussions. We've also advised them that we will be meeting with you/JCCP in September and would like to be in a position to have at least shared the re-draft, if not have it signed by that date.

I'll keep you posted if there are any other updates.

Kind regards

Hi [REDACTED]

It is the accreditation side that is looking to sign an MOU with the JCCP.

We have an awarding body, EduQual, which has developed a qualification with regards to injectables (which we accredited yesterday) and we have been in discussion for some time with JCCP re the whole aesthetic sector. We have also been in dialogue with the Scottish Government. It is considering bringing in legislation around this sector. It is content that we are in dialogue with the JCCP and is likely to make it a mandatory requirement that non-clinical individuals carrying out work in this sector undertake a qualification which meets the JCCP standards and that the qualification must be accredited by us and must be at least at SCQF level 10.

Industry Qualifications are also approved by us as an awarding body. They currently have an injectable qualification but we have been advised by the JCCP that it does not meet the current standards.

Hope this helps and happy to discuss further if required

Cheers

Sorry to inundate your inbox, but this has been passed to me – See highlighted text at the bottom of the email trail - I'm not aware of anything but are you ? Or have you heard this mentioned anywhere?

Thanks, [REDACTED]

Hi [REDACTED]

Just spotted the name. In case it helps, we had some dealings with [REDACTED] in March of this year, and [REDACTED] was also involved. He came to us seeking info re the credit rating process. I sent him a fairly detailed answer culled from info that was already in the public domain. He was very grateful at the time but haven't heard from him since.

Best wishes

Hi [REDACTED]

I am not aware of any such conversations or agreements at all, sorry. I would be interested to know more when you get to the bottom of it

Thanks

Colleagues

I have just received a telephone call from a [REDACTED] from Industry Qualifications (based in Bromsgrove) <http://www.industryqualifications.org.uk/> in relation to the above, which he advised is soon to be endorsed by the Joint Council for Cosmetic Practitioners (JCCP) <https://www.jccp.org.uk/>. He had been given my name as the QM for Beauty etc.

He had heard that SQA are going to be signing and MoU with JCCP re this product and would like to talk to someone about the potential of Industry Qualifications and SQA working together directly on this.

Are any of you dealing with this, and if you are would you be able to get in touch with me, please?

Thanks

Good morning [REDACTED]

Hope you are well and enjoyed the recent trip to Zagreb!

I've attached a copy of the MOU as revised by our legal advisors. You'll clearly want to take some time to review the changes and decide if JCCP would be comfortable signing it.

Let me know what you think.

Kind regards
