Waitrose

Waitrose is an upmarket British supermarket chain, which forms the food retail division of Britain's largest employee-owned retailer, the John Lewis Partnership. It has 353 branches across the United Kingdom, including 'Little Waitrose' convenience stores. Waitrose has a 5.5% share of the market, making it the sixth-largest grocery retailer in the UK. With 85,500 employees, Waitrose prides itself on offering meaningful and rewarding employment.

Online recruitment

Waitrose use an online recruitment model where jobs are regularly updated on its website. Candidates apply online and sign up for e-mail reminders when vacancies arise. With 353 branches in the UK, Waitrose's website is a key element of its workforce planning.

(Exhibit 1 shows an extract of Waitrose's staff commitment strategy.)

Leckford Farm

As part of its commitment to producing the very best quality food, Waitrose owns and operates Leckford Farm. The farm produces arable crops including high quality bread-making wheat which is used to make a range of flours. The farm also supplies milk, apples, pears, apple juice, cider, mushrooms, free range eggs and chickens, to many Waitrose branches throughout the UK.

In 2013, Waitrose opened the Leckford Farm Shop which sells more than 1,000 home-grown products, including fresh meats and cheeses, bread, chutneys and a specially selected range of wine, as well as stocking products from more than 60 locally sourced suppliers in the region.

Iain Dalton, Head of Leckford Farm, said: "Waitrose is in a very fortunate position to have its own farm and its farm shop, which is totally unique to Waitrose, and can showcase not just the food produced on the estate, but allows outstanding local and regional food producers to flourish. The shop sells the highest quality food and, if something proves popular, there is the potential for it to be sold more widely throughout the Waitrose stores."

Branch closures and delayering

In 2017, Waitrose announced that its senior management planned to close 6 of its underperforming stores, putting nearly 700 jobs at risk. Ahead of the closures, Waitrose began consulting with staff at the 6 affected stores in: Hertford, Staines, Leek, Huntingdon, Cardiff Queen Street, and Palmers Green in London.

In addition, Waitrose will remove the role of department manager from its retail structure. Waitrose said some of the 486 department managers would be promoted to deputy store managers, and the reduction in staff would happen gradually over 3 years through retirement, natural turnover and voluntary redundancies.

Challenging retail environment

Charlie Mayfield, the Chairman of Waitrose's parent group, the John Lewis Partnership, warned that retailers would have to face the rise in the cost of importing goods as the UK is no longer a member of the European Union (EU). Trade negotiations with the EU are creating uncertainty in the UK market for retailers. This comes at a time when shoppers are moving away from big weekly shops towards picking up what they need locally, on a more regular basis.

The 'big four' supermarket rivals: Tesco, Sainsbury's, Asda and Morrisons have already pushed through restructuring plans in the face of an increasingly competitive landscape. In an attempt to maintain its competitive edge, Waitrose pledges to price-match Tesco, the UK's biggest supermarket chain, on thousands of branded product lines. In addition, the rise in popularity of discounters, mainly Aldi and Lidl in the UK, has seen many of Waitrose's middle-class shoppers picking up bargains in the German-owned low-cost retailers.

Waitrose's wealthier London-based shoppers have been keen adopters of online retail. With rising internet grocery sales, the amount of time spent on picking and packing customers' groceries is increasing. Overall Waitrose is profitable, however it makes considerably less profit online than it does in its stores.

Employee benefits
Competitive salary	Waitrose offers a performance-based pay policy so employees can improve their salary based on the quality of their work.
Bonus	The annual bonus is a proportion of Waitrose's profits given to employees as a percentage of their salary. In 2018 this was 5% of each employee's pay.
Career progression	Waitrose offers a range of ways its employees can develop their careers; from promotion to empowerment.
Commitment to employee safety and well-being
Work related stress policy	Waitrose has set up a group to monitor work related stress on an ongoing basis which reviews employees' workload.
Risk assessment review group	Waitrose regularly carries out health and safety inspections and audits potential hazards in the workplace.
Facilities and working practices
Subsidised support clubs	Waitrose part-funds some clubs and societies for its employees including drama, photography, music and art societies.
Low-cost canteens	Most of Waitrose's supermarkets have subsidised dining facilities that offer excellent food at very reasonable prices to its employees.
Permanent contracts	Waitrose retains workers through the use of permanent contracts with very few temporary contracts issued in comparison to rival grocers.
