Section 2: comments on assessment

Assessment approaches

Centres set up a variety of individual and team activities to allow candidates to perform a range of skills at both levels for Performance Skills (National 3) and Performance Skills (National 4) units.

For the Factors Impacting on Performance unit (National 4), most centres had used the template from the unit assessment support pack. Some centres had added a centre-designed format prompting candidates to follow a set pattern when creating and recording their personal development plan. This format usually ensured that candidates had the opportunity to achieve the required standard. This approach also allowed for candidates to be prompted in order to provide an appropriate response through the use of illustrations or graphics.

Assessment judgements

For Performance Skills (National 3) and Performance Skills (National 4) units, centres judged the candidates' performances at the correct standard. Thorough discussion took place between the centre assessor and the visiting verifier, and guidance and support allowed centre staff to continue to be confident in their assessment judgements.

To pass Performance Skills (National 3) and Performance Skills (National 4) units candidates must achieve all assessment standards in two different activities. This does not have to be assessed in one 'single event' and can take place over several sessions.

Overall, centres applied the national standard correctly for Factors Impacting on Performance units at both National 3 and National 4. While it is good practice to encourage candidates to put in their best work, the minimum standard must be accepted as achieving the assessment standard.

The unit assessment support packs on SQA's secure website, have tables that give guidance on how to judge evidence. The last column in these tables gives examples of partial responses that would achieve the assessment standard. These, along with the materials on the understanding standards website, are useful tools for assessors to help judge the candidates' evidence.

Section 3: general comments

For the Performance Skills unit centres knew their candidates well and ensured that an appropriate context was created in order for them to access each assessment standard.

For the Factors Impacting on Performance unit at both National 3 and 4, centres are reminded that candidates may be able to achieve a number of assessment standards within a personal development plan if clear guidance is given on what part of the response is being matched to a certain assessment standard. An example might be where monitoring takes place through feedback from others. If this is recorded, it would help access assessment standards 2.2 and 3.1 at National 3, and 2.3 and 3.1 at National 4. If responses are clearly acknowledged as an attempt at those standards, a candidate would not have to rewrite the same information. This is only an example and not mandatory.

Many centres had developed internal verification procedures. When in place, these had been used effectively and successfully to ensure that assessment judgements were valid and reliable. SQA has an Internal Verification Toolkit and, although this is not mandatory, centres are encouraged to refer to it for guidance. Many centres had comprehensive evidence of rigorous internal verification. Some centres had comments from an assessor and an internal verifier; others had used different coloured pens to indicate that a response or assessment record sheet had been internally verified. It is important that, where an assessor and internal verifier disagree on the judgement, the outcome of the final judgement is made clear.

There are examples of candidate evidence and commentaries in the Understanding Standards section of SQA's secure website.

Assessment approaches

The performance component performed as expected. A range of activities were observed by verifiers and information from the centres showed that an even wider range of activities were assessed in centres. Centres appear to have embraced the opportunity to allow personalisation and choice which led to strong performances in this component of the course. Centres had put in great effort to ensure that as many candidates as possible could be assessed in their chosen activities.

Each centre provided a range of activities which allowed the majority of candidates to perform at their best and access all assessment items. Centres set up each assessment task to provide the appropriate challenge and context for all candidates at each level. Each candidate was clearly identifiable, and tactics, roles and composition were shared with the verifier before the assessment.

In most cases, centres submitted clear video evidence for Advanced Higher candidates, provided accurate labelling, and showed approaches that were valid, and should be commended for the time and care taken in gathering the evidence. From this evidence, verifiers were able to view candidates performing within appropriate and challenging contexts, showing centres knew their candidates' abilities well.

Assessment judgements

In the majority of cases, the centre assessment judgements were in line with the national standards and were reliable and accepted. The centre assessors in most cases used appropriate comments with activity-specific exemplification which were thorough, accurate and useful. The centre assessors showed a full understanding of the national standards and applied it fairly and correctly.

Candidates performed well in the performance component of the course, with many achieving full marks. Verifiers reported that they observed some outstanding performances where National 5 candidates were playing against, or with, Higher candidates who were introduced to enable the National 5 candidate to have the opportunity to access a full range of marks in an appropriate context. It was clear that centres knew their candidates' capabilities and so were able to provide suitable contexts for assessment.

Some centres were outwith tolerance in their judgements and needed to revisit the marks for the entire cohort and adjust the marks where necessary. Each centre in this situation received feedback and support to ensure they marked to the national standard. These centres fully engaged in discussions and resolved any issues identified during the visit.

Section 3: general comments

The context and verification planning was carried out successfully by most centres. Centre staff knew their candidates well and this showed during the verification visits. Verifiers reported that candidates conducted themselves well and were a credit to their centres during the visits.

Centres must follow the guidelines set out in the Advanced Higher coursework assessment task, for example ensuring that the footage of the performance is an acceptable length and that the candidate is always clearly identifiable.
