Why do we need this policy?

The purpose of this policy is to outline the principles and criteria for the language of assessment and certification of units and qualifications validated by Qualifications Scotland and delivered by centres in the United Kingdom.

Scotland's main language by custom and usage is English, with Gaelic, Scots, and British Sign Language making up the country's other main language groups. English and Gaelic are the principal languages of learning and teaching in Scotland, and this is reflected in the languages that we certificate and assesses in.

The policy supports our corporate goals to:

- provide a credible qualifications system
- be flexible in meeting customer needs
- be trusted, respected, and valued by our customers, stakeholders and partners

Gaelic-medium qualifications

Qualifications Scotland currently makes a number of qualifications available through the medium of Gaelic. We are committed to Gaelic-medium education, and in line with our Gaelic Language Plan we aim to maintain and build on current provision by providing support materials and expanding our range of Gaelic-medium subjects available at Senior Phase in secondary schools and colleges.

There is an added commitment to extend the range of Gaelic-medium assessments available across a range of qualification product types. This will be determined in consultation with Bòrd na Gàidhlig and reflects our commitment to the Gaelic Language (Scotland) Act 2005.

What does it apply to?

This policy applies to:

- National Qualifications (including National Courses including Skills for Work, and Scottish Baccalaureates)
- Higher National Qualifications Advanced Certificates/Diplomas (where delivered in the United Kingdom)
- Professional Development Awards
- National Certificates
- National Progression Awards
- Awards (AWDs)
- Awards/Certificates/Diplomas (workplace)
- Component units of the above
- Freestanding units

There is one category of exclusion to this policy — please see section 4.1 Exclusions for detail.

Policy

1 Policy statement

Units and qualifications validated by Qualifications Scotland and delivered in the United Kingdom are assessed in English, and, in a range of subjects, Gaelic. Units and qualifications are all certificated in English unless they are delivered and assessed in the medium of Gaelic.

It should be noted that 'language of assessment' refers to the language used by a learner in their assessment. It does not refer to the assessment of languages, for example, modern languages.

We are committed to equality of opportunity and to a culture that respects difference. We believe that, as an employer and public body, we can play a leading part in promoting equality, diversity and inclusion by making them an integral part of our decision making. At the development stage, we completed an Equality Impact Assessment to see how this policy might impact on equality groups, and the findings from this are reflected in this policy.

2 Policy relationship to our Governing Principles

Qualifications Scotland's Governing Principles determine how we meet our statutory duties and self-regulate our activities. This policy supports and is supported by:

Governing Principle 1: Openness to the needs of individuals, educational and vocational institutions and the needs of society is an essential aim of Qualifications Scotland, and therefore Qualifications Scotland will endeavour to ensure that processes for the development of qualifications, assessment and the maintenance of national standards are as open and transparent as possible; and informed through a research and evidence-based approach to self-regulation.

Governing Principle 7: Qualifications Scotland will ensure that all qualifications and assessments are as fair and accessible as possible and that the needs of candidates are met in the administration of its assessments.

3 Responsibilities

Responsibilities of the awarding body:

- Ensure that the assessment of our qualifications is valued and credible with users, partner organisations and the wider community.
- Where Qualifications Scotland makes a qualification available in more than one language (eg both English and Gaelic), we must take all reasonable steps to ensure that the assessment of those qualifications is at the same level of demand for all learners. We may employ the services of an experienced translator to provide interpretation to support this for quality assurance purposes.
- Employ the services of an external verifier with experience in the target language for quality assurance purposes when required. The activity of external quality assurance and associated reporting will be conducted in English.
- When a qualification has been coded by us for Gaelic-medium delivery and assessment, the title of the qualification will be in Gaelic and the certificate will also include a recognition statement to indicate that the course was attained through the medium of Gaelic.
- Conduct quality assurance activity as per our published process.

Responsibilities of the centre:

- Advise us of any learner requests for assessment in the medium of Gaelic or British Sign Language (where this is allowed as a reasonable adjustment) before entering learners for a qualification on Qualifications Scotland Connect.

- Where British Sign Language is allowed as a reasonable adjustment, and a learner is having the contents of any external assessment of National Courses, signed to them by a sign communicator and / or will be signing their responses, the centre must submit a request to use sign language through the Assessment Arrangements Request (AAR) system, by the published deadline. There is more information in our guide, Using Sign in SQA Assessments, which is available on our website.
- Produce a video recording of the learner's signed responses for the assessment and submit this along with an English translation or transcription of the learner's assessment responses for submission to us.
- Centres do not need to seek approval from Qualifications Scotland to sign internal assessment material to a candidate or for the candidate to use sign to respond, unless by doing so the assessment criteria will be changed.

4 Policy requirements

Scotland's main language by custom and usage is English, with Gaelic, Scots, and British Sign Language making up the country's other main language groups. English and Gaelic are the principal languages of learning and teaching in Scotland, and this is reflected in the languages used in the assessment and certification of our units and qualifications. Units and qualifications validated by us and delivered in the United Kingdom are assessed in English, and, in a range of subjects, Gaelic.

Language of assessment refers to the language used by a learner in their assessment. It does not refer to the assessment of languages, for example, modern languages.

All our units and qualifications within the scope of this policy are certificated in English. Where candidates are externally assessed in Gaelic-medium the qualification title will appear in Gaelic and the certificate will include a recognition statement. Where candidates are internally assessed in Gaelic-medium the certificate

Language of Assessment and Certification in Units and Qualifications Validated by Qualifications Scotland (Delivered in the UK) Policy will not include a recognition statement. Recognition statements may be included on both paper certificates and electronic statements of certification for National Courses assessed through the medium of Gaelic.

Assessment in languages other than English and Gaelic

The scope of this policy does not extend to requests for our units or qualifications to be assessed in a language other than English or Gaelic. This means that the translation of our assessment materials into a learner's first language, or the translation of a learner's assessment responses from their first language into English, is not allowed.

Detailed guidance around the arrangements which are available to support such learners can be found on our website: Use of a bilingual dictionary for learners who have English as an additional language. We are committed to exploring the delivery and assessment of our qualifications, should demand be at such a level that it would be proportionate, practical, and viable to do so, in terms of both resources and funding. We will continue to monitor requests for assessment in languages other than English in an ongoing basis.

4.1 Exclusions

There is one category of exclusion to this policy where we will allow assessment in languages other than English for units and qualifications validated by us:

Assessment Arrangements — British Sign Language.

We consider requests for assessment in British Sign Language as a reasonable adjustment. Reflecting our commitment to the Equality Act 2010, we consider how to remove unnecessary barriers to access for disabled candidates, while maintaining the integrity of the qualification. We allow the use of British Sign Language for deaf learners' internal and external assessments, excluding modern languages, English and Gaelic. Further information on Reasonable Adjustments can be found on our website: Section 96\(7\) Equality Act 2010: Specifications on Reasonable Adjustments in National Qualifications in Scotland.

For information about our qualifications assessed in British Sign Language, you should read Using Sign in SQA Assessments on our website.
